Direct Resin Pearls for the General Practitioner: Exceptional Results with Predictable Techniques

Direct resin has become the restorative material of choice in both general and high-end esthetic practices. The explosion of demand by patients for esthetic dental services has led to an array of new dental products and treatments for practitioners to choose from. Dr. Morgan’s webinar will discuss direct resin pearls and composite gems, including simplifying Class IV composites with life-like esthetics, creating predictable multiple Class II resins and decreasing chair time needed to complete Class I direct composites. Both basic and advanced esthetic restorative treatment procedures will be discussed, as well as marketing tips for attracting esthetic-oriented patients. There will be a 15-minute Q&A session following the presentation.

Course Objectives:

• Learn the correct method for determining the lingual occlusion of a Class IV composite resin
• Understand how to determine the ideal marginal ridge height and occlusion of Class II posterior direct composites before starting treatment
• Decrease the time needed to complete multiple posterior Class II restorations
• Discover a predictable technique to choose the value of any anterior or posterior direct composite
• Learn multiple uses for flowable composite in everyday clinical dentistry

CDS is an ADA CERP Recognized Provider. ADA CERP is a service of the American Dental Association to assist dental professionals in identifying quality providers of continuing dental education. ADA CERP does not approve or endorse individual courses or instructors, nor does it imply acceptance of credit hours by boards of dentistry. CDS designates this webinar for 1 continuing education credit.
CDS to present debut webinar October 27 at www.cds.org

Following the example established by the Midwinter Meeting, CDS brings you more outstanding continuing education opportunities online. Featuring the best speakers, CDS webinars will continue the CDS tradition of fostering excellence in dentistry. We know you will find our webinars entertaining and informative.

Our first webinar debuts at 2 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 27, when Michael Morgan, DDS, presents “Direct Resin Pearls for the General Practitioner: Exceptional Results with Predictable Techniques.”

Earn 1 CE hour when you participate in this exciting new opportunity, which is free to CDS members (non-members pay $30). There will be a 15-minute Q&A session following the presentation.

Registration online only at www.cds.org. If you sign up but can’t attend the lecture when it is presented, you will receive a link to watch a recording of the event whenever you’d like.

CDS officers election date set for November 10

The 2011 CDS Election of Officers will be held Nov. 10 during the Regional Meeting at Drury Lane, 100 Drury Lane, Oakbrook Terrace.

The 2011 CDS officer nominees are

- President: Ian Elliott
- President-elect: John Gerding
- Secretary: David Fulton Jr.
- Vice President: Richard Holba
- Treasurer: Susan Becker Doroshow

The Installation of Officers will be held Sunday, Nov. 14, at the Ritz Carlton Chicago Hotel, 160 E. Pearson St., Chicago. Welcome Reception: 6:15 p.m., Installation: 7 p.m., Dessert Reception: 8 p.m.

Committee works to bring greater access to dental care

The CDS Access to Care Committee was established to improve access to dental care for underserved groups. The committee’s mission is to identify existing programs and assess local needs, resources, especially manpower and funding; and educational opportunities. They also assist in the creation, implementation and promotion of new programs.

There is an online database of clinics where CDS members can a) refer patients in need, b) volunteer their own time to help patients in need, and c) donate gently used equipment when they renovate their offices or retire.

Of course, this database is constantly being updated and improved. To share updated information about a current listing or to tell the Access to Care Committee about a program you’d like to see added to the database, please contact Joanna Brown at jbrown@cds.org.

Don’t forget that February is National Children’s Dental Health Month! Visit www.cds.org/kids for ideas on how you can contribute in your community and local schools. If you’re thinking about visiting a school, now is the time to contact the teachers to make plans to visit in February.

Clarification

In the cover story “Don’t forget about me,” published in the July/August issue of the CDS Review, it was omitted that the Heartland International Health Center employs the dentist, oral health educator, and all other staff for the health centers located in Senn and Roosevelt high schools.

Tickets still available for ‘Million Dollar Quartet’

Million Dollar Quartet is the musical inspired by the famed recording session that brought together rock ‘n’ roll icons Elvis Presley, Johnny Cash, Jerry Lee Lewis and Carl Perkins for the first and only time.

Join your colleagues Sunday, Oct. 24, for the 5 p.m. performance at the Apollo Theater, 2540 N. Lincoln Ave., Chicago. CDS members may purchase a maximum of four tickets to this show.

- Ticket Value: $58
- CDS Member Price: $38
- Parking is available adjacent to the theater. Parking fees are not included in your ticket purchase.

Ticket sales will close Sept. 26 so that final counts may be provided to the theater. No refunds. No exchanges. No exceptions.

Broaden your knowledge through online CE

Our readers weigh in on mid-level providers

Our goal should be one team working to benefit all
In response to Dr. Walter Lamacki’s column [Final Impressions] in the July/August CDS Review, I agree with him that the American Dental Association has totally mishandled the mid-level provider issue. However, that fact does not justify its legitimacy as the answer to the access to care problem.

It really concerns me that the push for mid-level providers is coming from organizations outside the dental profession. There are no guarantees that these new providers would be part of the dental team or would end up treating those in need. Economic realities would force mid-level providers away from underserved areas.

Aside from the ADA, other dental societies, like our own Illinois State Dental Society, have been trying to solve the access issue by lobbying for change with our Bridge to Healthy Smiles initiatives. The Academy of General Dentistry has produced a multifaceted plan detailed in its White Paper on Increasing Access to and Utilization of Oral Healthcare Services successfully addressing this problem.

I don’t agree with Dr. Lamacki’s statement that “mid-level providers are here to stay and opposing them is a lost cause.” I think it is the right and responsibility of every dentist to advocate for one level of quality care for the public and oppose a lower level of treatment for those in need. It would not serve the public to have the practice of dentistry divided and changed back from a profession to a trade. Our goal should be one dental team working together for the benefit of all.

— Jeff Kramer, DDS
Chicago

Many concerns re: DHATs
Regarding the Final Impressions column in the July/August CDS Review, the issue of Dental Health Aide Therapists (DHAT) could be irresolvable quickly, but those in charge should consider not just the improved access to the care, but the quality of it. The quantity of care is not necessarily equal to the quality.

Yes, there could be bad dentists and capable DHATs, but the majority of dentists are well trained and controlled by the schools and licensing boards. But what about DHATs?

The other issue is the range of the services that they will be allowed to perform. Who and how will the limitations be set up? How will it be controlled? Will they have their own malpractice insurance?

Are there guarantees that there will not be abuse of the payers? I mean, there could be fraud, which can be promoted by easy access and less responsibility.

I guess that there are quite a few things to worry about.

— Abe Dumanis, DS, DDS
Skokie

Safeguarding the public is of paramount importance
Final Impressions in the July/August CDS Review hit the nail on the head.

In the age of evidence-based dentistry, the American Dental Association was certainly using doublespeak when it came to condemning the Alaska program before it had a chance to be evaluated. As Dr. Walter Lamacki pointed out, other expanded duty programs both in the United States and in other countries have been evaluated and have been shown to be successful. I fully agree that we should forget about trying to quash the concept and work to incorporate it into the dental team approach of dental practice.

Safeguarding the public is of paramount importance. The ADA should spend its time on the accreditation process of the programs, and the states should take up the licensure issues. We need programs that produce care and the care should be under the supervision of a licensed dentist. Dr. Lamacki summed that up quite well in the last paragraphs of his column, a job well done.

— Richard Perry, DDS
Oak Park

More kudos
I truly enjoyed both Dr. Lamacki’s articles, Final Impressions and Looking Back, in the July/August issue of the CDS Review. The Stevens Hotel article was historical and very interesting. The mid-level provider article was right on the money. I applaud your willingness to take on the regionalism and the American Dental Association.

Thank you for continuing to care enough about our profession to move it forward. Kicking and screaming are adjectives that come to mind.

— William Ten Pas

I just wanted to drop you a line to say I’m in complete agreement with Dr. Walter Lamacki’s Final Impressions on mid-level providers printed in the July/August issue of the CDS Review. Well said.

Bravo Dr. Lamacki. I really loved your piece in the latest CDS Review [July/August] on mid-level providers.

Is there a dumbing down of dentistry?

In July, I had my 37th anniversary of beginning clinical practice. The school from which I graduated insisted on the continuance of education.

Dentistry wasn’t about profit centers; it was about being a doctor, and it was about expanding your horizons and knowledge without fail each day, even after those rare days of maddening ingratitude.

My mentor and early partner [Dr. Walter Lamacki] reinforced this. Rarely has a day gone by that I haven’t studied dentistry. This is true of almost all of those who get to the end of the CDS Review and read Final Impressions [written by Dr. Lamacki].

Continuing dental education has certainly changed. There’s less one-on-one and more online. At two in the morning, I can take a course and even be tested, but I can’t take the lecturer aside and privately ask about the case that went south.

I’ve been told that a good number of courses in new dental facilities offer considerable hours of virtual training. You’ll never get to see great anatomy instructors draw with both hands.

For some disciplines, you can now submit your patient cases online and have someone who has never seen the patient develop a treatment plan. How many teeth are spun down for marginal esthetic improvements as recommended by someone in Las Vegas?

At two in the morning, I can take a course and even be tested, but I can’t take the lecturer aside and privately ask about the case that went south.

I’m worried. Not for myself but for the “doctor” component of DDS or DMD.

Is there a dumbing down of dentistry in some sectors to the level that some patients don’t see a difference between doctors and non-doctors? Is this the equivalent of getting our general health care at Walgreens by a nurse? How much more confusing will it be for that patient who is seeking attentive, high quality care?

We will all live with whatever outcome evolves. Some of us, like myself, closer to the end of our careers, will be less affected.

As Shakespeare wrote, “what’s done is done.”

— Mike Kowalik, DDS

Burbank
Not long ago, I had cause to read the parts of the Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (PPACA) that pertain to dentistry.

You may know that there is a provision in the Act to fund entities to establish demonstration programs to train “alternative dental health providers.” The providers could be, naming a few, community dental health coordinators (CDHS), advance practice dental hygienists, independent dental hygienists, supervised dental hygienists, primary care physicians, dental therapists or dental health aids.

The ISDS Dental News last month reported positions on the issue of access to care and how to address it. At the moment, funded by a grant from the Kellogg and Macy foundations, a panel of public health dentists is drafting a position paper.

I do not know how the debate on access to care will end and will not attempt to forecast a result. I’m not Nostradamus.

But the mission of CDS is clear regarding the oral health needs of the residents of the district. The CDS constitution calls for the Society to represent the interests of our member dentists and all individuals who live in the tri-county area.

This includes the approximately 1 million residents of Cook County who live on an income under 200 percent of the federal poverty line. These are the individuals who have the least access to care.

Many of our colleagues provide pro bono care to the indigent. But the number of dentists involved in such care are not sufficient to meet the needs of so many who require oral healthcare but do not possess the resources to obtain it. And frankly, I think it is unlikely a dental workforce to care for the underserved is a realistic concept in a state where reimbursement is much less than the cost to care for these patients.

However, ISDS is attempting to address that issue through legislation. ISDS has a bill before the state Legislature to raise rates to 64 percent of usual and customary rates. In other states, raising rates to this level resulted in sufficient practitioners joining other Medicaid providers to more adequately address the access to care problem. Passage and funding of this initiative is doubtful in a state that is $13 billion in debt.

What can we do? How can members of our Chicago Dental Society fulfill its objective as listed in its constitution?

Members could join Dent-IL-PAC (www.isds.org) and become advocates for passage of the Bridge to Healthy Smiles campaign (www.bridgetohealthysmiles.com). I strongly believe that activism is necessary in this climate. Otherwise, we will not be at the table when decisions are made affecting oral health, the practice of dentistry and, more importantly, the quality of care delivered to our patients.

How else can you help?

You can also help by increasing the involvement of your colleagues.

Then show the column to a colleague who does not belong to organized dentistry and encourage them to join with us in protecting dentistry and quality of care and improving access to care.

Isn’t it about time for all dentists to step up to the plate?

Dennis Manning, a past president of the Chicago Dental Society, is one of four candidates seeking election to the office of president-elect of the American Dental Association in 2011. The 2010 House of Delegates will make the selection at its annual session in Orlando Oct. 9-13.

In a brief interview with CDS Review Editor Walter Lamacki, Dr. Manning shared his thoughts about the ADA and the challenges facing it, as well as the responsibilities of the ADA leadership.

Dr. Lamacki: Dr. Manning, why are you running for president-elect of the ADA? What are the challenges organized dentistry faces and how would you address them?

Dr. Manning: The American Dental Association is facing many of the most difficult challenges in its history. We are besieged by problems in operational excellence, ethical dilemmas, board dysfunction, transparency with the House and now the mid-level provider issue. To preserve and protect our profession and the patients we serve, we must not waiver to outside pressures to diminish our core values or allow the dilution of our standards.

In order to resolve these daunting issues it will require a strong defender of our profession, one who will not give in under pressure exerted by foundations and federal agencies, or falter when faced with hard challenges. I have proven my ability to face hard challenges. As chair of the Audit Committee I was instrumental in initiating the necessary corrective actions for the association which are ongoing at this time.

In concert with the ADA House mandates and in the interest of transparency, the Audit Committee released the necessary reports and shared vital information with the members of House of Delegates.

It is imperative that the House and the Board be unified in one voice for the benefit of our profession.

I have the skill, motivation and determination necessary to resolve our significant internal problems that can no longer be ignored so that we can be best positioned to address the external issues facing the ADA and our members.

Dr. Lamacki: Can the CDHC gain traction in state legislatures, many of which are currently considering mid-level providers to solve access to dental care?

Dr. Manning: I would first of all like to give you some factual information about the Community Dental Health Coordinator Project. The Community Dental Health Coordinator (CDHC) is not a mid-level provider. The CDHC is based on the Community Health coordinator – a proven model for improving the health of underserved populations.

I have been serving as a member of the Lake County Illinois Board of Health for a number of years. After reviewing the dental health of patients in our Health Department dental treatment facilities, there is a strong indication for this type of community service worker. This worker would be a conduit between the underserved communities that are in desperate need of care and dentists who are licensed and trained to provide that care.

Dental education for the public and local, state and national legislators can best be achieved with this type of worker, who would be an extension of public health facilities and the dentists providing care. The CDHC is trained to educate, inform and provide dentist referrals. The CDHC does not treat, diagnose or place permanent restorations.

In 2005 there were 120,000 Community Health Workers whose job it was to improve public health through outreach and education. They increased...
If Dr. Manning is successful, he will be the first ADA president from Chicago in more than a half-century.

The last ADA president from Chicago was Harold Oppice in 1950.

The last ADA president from the 8th District was Robert Griffiths of Charleston, 1981-82.

Only 12 Chicago area dentists have served as president of the ADA.

access for underserved communities and served as a valuable liaison to these communities. The statistical data gathered as a result of the Community Health Workers could support the need for this type of worker to the legislators. CDHCs will work primarily in public health and community settings like clinics, schools, senior centers and Head Start programs. They will service urban, rural and Native American settings. They will help patients navigate the healthcare system.

I do not support any form of mid-level or lower level provider providing hands-on dental treatment to patients. I do not endorse any form of a two-tiered dental delivery system. We must adhere to the gold standard of dental care. The dental profession in our United States is the voice of oral healthcare, the best in the world. Only dentists should be allowed to diagnose and treat patients appropriately with quality dental care.

Dr. Lamacki: In June the state of Minnesota adopted a two-part exam that includes a written test and a non-patient based examination for testing the competence of graduates of Minnesota’s Dental School applying for licensure. What are the ramifications of Minnesota’s actions?

Dr. Manning: On June 26, the State Board of Minnesota added the adoption of the Canadian Model Dental Exam for licensure called the Objective Structured Clinical Examination (OSCE). This is a non-patient based examination in which candidates for licensure answer questions based on models, radiographs, casts and case histories. The results of this examination are recognized and accepted only in the State of Minnesota.

This examination is only allowed for dental students attending the University of Minnesota. Dental students attending the University of Minnesota are also eligible to take any of the Regional Licensure Examinations that are patient-based to afford them the opportunity to practice in other states as well as Minnesota. The State Board in Minnesota will accept the results of all Regional Exams including the OSCE.

One ramification of Minnesota’s actions is that other states may opt to follow Minnesota’s decision.

You are aware that the American Dental Association’s policy going back to 2005 supports the elimination of human subjects in the clinical licensure examination process.

In 2007, an initial clinical licensure process called the Curriculum Integrated Format was adopted by the ADA. This examination consists of an independent third party assessment prior to graduation from a dental education program accredited by the ADA Commission on Dental Accreditation. This process includes patient care as part of the assessment, performed by candidates on patients of record, whenever possible, within an appropriately sequenced treatment plan.

The competencies assessed are selected components of current dental education program curricula. In 2007, the American Student Dental Association (ASDA) adopted the Curriculum Integrated Format as its policy.

Interestingly enough, I read a comment from a member of a Commission on Dental Accreditation (CODA) task force who stated: “I would suggest supporting an idea of accepting a hybrid format of the 2007 accepted ‘Curriculum Integrated Format.’” An idea that he had would be to urge CODA to develop a new standard where dental students must demonstrate competency in those areas that are currently measured by various Regional Exams and make this a condition for graduation.

Dr. Manning seeks to be ADA president-elect

Dr. Manning last year stated in his announcement of candidacy that it has become increasingly important for the ADA to position itself as an “intuitive, adaptable organization with a unity of purpose.” Leadership of the ADA, he added, must understand the challenges facing the dentistry and have the experience to help the organization “protect the future of dentistry.”

According to Dr. Manning, the keystones for the continued success of the ADA are “advocacy, dedication and achievement.”

He defined advocacy as dentistry, represented by the ADA, maintaining a dialogue with legislators to ensure oral healthcare is a high priority, developing innovative options to provide services to the community and establishing “strategic alliances” to preserve the profession.

He added that the “dedicated service and preparedness of dentists across the nation has propelled our association forward for decades and left behind a track record of remarkable success and utmost respect for the dental professional. The ADA will fortify its chances for success by reaching out to others within and outside the dental profession.”

Dr. Manning stated in his announcement that “organized dentistry has long enjoyed a record of achievement because of its strong membership.” In order to continue a record of achievement, members of the ADA “must demonstrate we are caretakers of our profession, continue to deliver quality and ethical care, and stay united as an organization and respond to issues.”

As ADA president, Dr. Manning stated he will “collaborate with peer member organizations and others in the dental community, promote communications with internal and external resources, and increase effectiveness and success by securing input and support throughout the organization.”

Dr. Manning stated in his announcement that “Access to care must have appropriate funding to ensure adequate reimbursement for services. Through increased funding of state and federal programs specific to dentistry, there will be an increase in member participation and the need for legislation pertaining to access and the development of mid-level provider programs will be eliminated.”

Dr. Manning is finishing a four-year term as 8th District trustee. He is also a past vice president of the ADA. He served the ADA as a member of the Council on Government Affairs vice chair and the Audit Committee chair. Besides service to CDS, he served in many volunteer positions for the Illinois State Dental Society. He is also a captain in the Naval Reserve. Dr. Manning and his wife, Linda, reside in Ivanhoe.
A long-standing, respected provider of continuing education, the Chicago Dental Society will offer a webinar for the first time in October. Dentists are invited to log on to the live presentation, scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 27. The program, Direct Resin Pearls for the General Practitioner by Michael Morgan, will last one hour including time for questions. Participants may earn one hour of CE credit.

“Webinars like this one are one more way that doctors can keep up with the latest advancements in dentistry, but from the convenience of their home or office,” CDS director of scientific programs Al Kleszynski said.

“We are proud to add this webinar to our menu of educational opportunities like our Midwinter Meeting, our Regional Meetings and our online CE library, as we continue our tradition of continuing excellence in dentistry.”

During the live webinar, registered participants will log on to their computers to hear Dr. Morgan’s presentation live, as he is presenting it, and watch his slides on their computer screens. The audio may be accessed through your computer’s speakers or by telephone. Participants may also ask questions of the presenter by typing them into their computer or asking them via telephone.

Registrants who choose to watch the webinar online after the live presentation will hear the same audio and see the same slides as the live participants, but they will not interact with the presenter.

“The benefit of online learning is really the saving of time and the convenience of attending the webinar at home or wherever you are, really,” said Kelly Snyder, Director of Online Events for webinar provider CommPartners. “It’s wherever you want to be.”

Established in 1994, CommPartners has a staff of 35 professionals who facilitate 1,500 online events each year.

Online registration opens for both CDS members and non-members Sept. 7 at www.cds.org. Clicking the link on the home page takes registrants to the new page to select the Oct. 27 session (the only option at this time). Registrants are then asked to provide a variety of information, including their e-mail address to demonstrate CDS membership. Though the webinar is free to CDS members, non-members will be asked to pay the $30 fee at this time.

Upon completion, registrants will receive an e-mail confirmation with several important items: a browser test, a link to the webinar and a pass code to log in, a phone number to dial in for audio, and a link to the speaker’s handouts. This link is active both before and after the live webinar.

Ms. Snyder advises that registrants do the browser test as soon as they receive the e-mail confirmation. This will ensure your computer has the latest versions of the software you’ll need to participate in the webinar. If your computer fails the browser test, there will be links to update the necessary software so that your computer will be compatible with the webinar.

“Make sure you test the computer that you’ll be using for the webinar,” Ms. Snyder said. “The clients that most frequently have problems with the browser test are government offices and universities that have major firewalls. If you will be using a computer in one of these places and you don’t pass the browser test, you might have to contact your IT administrator to get access to the (webinar) site.”

Registered participants who are still having problems accessing the site can contact CommPartners Technical support department at cds@commpartners.com or 800.274.9390 (7:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. CST).

Ms. Snyder further recommended that webinar participants use the pass code in their confirmation e-mail to log in to the webinar site 15 minutes before the start of the session to allow for set-up time.

Participants who are successfully logged in will see the speaker’s slides on their computer screens, and must then consider their audio options: either turn up the computer’s speakers, or dial in on the telephone.

Either way, participants will hear the audio from the speaker and any questions that are asked by the audience. To ask questions during the allotted Q&A period, participants may type them into the chat box at the bottom of the screen, or dial a code to ask them by phone. A moderator will ensure questions are asked and answered in an orderly fashion at appropriate times, and that the webinar ends in precisely 60 minutes.

If you log in early, consider clicking on the menu items at the top of the screen. The “Links” tab will offer items of interest related to CDS and the day’s presentation. Attendees may browse these links before or during the presentation for reference.

At the end of the session, the moderator will announce that the session is over, and the browser window will automatically reset to the browser’s homepage.

If plans change and registrants are not available to participate in the live webinar, check the confirmation e-mail for a link to the archive. Participants can view a recording of the webinar up to three times after the original airing, beginning within a few days of the original event.

CDS returns to Ravinia
Members treated to a night of The American Masters

by Joanna Brown

The weather wasn’t perfect, but the atmosphere under the tent was when CDS members and their guests gathered at Ravinia July 11 for the annual CDS summer picnic. The Chicago Symphony Orchestra presented The American Masters: Berstein/Copland, commemorating the 20th anniversary of the deaths of Leonard Bernstein and Aaron Copland.

Guests enjoyed a light supper and cocktails before retreating to their reserved seats under Ravinia’s pavilion. There, featured pianists mesmerized the crowd with their interpretations of Bernstein’s Symphony No. 2 (“The Age of Anxiety”), Copland’s Appalachian Spring and Gershwin’s Concerto in F.

The rain began to fall at the conclusion of the performance, but CDS guests barely noticed as they enjoyed sweet treats, coffee and camaraderie under our reserved tent.

The value of virtual assistants

I work with three virtual assistants – none of whom I’ve ever met. All have made me more successful, freeing my time to complete the billable work that sustains my business.

What are virtual assistants? They are independent contractors who (from a remote location, usually their home or office) support multiple clients by providing administrative, creative and/or technical services.

You might consider hiring this type of partner for your practice if:
- You have too much work, and not enough time to do it
- A project requires specialized skills you don’t have or will take too long for you to do yourself
- Certain tasks (such as bookkeeping) bore you.

You may find it makes more sense to focus on activities that produce income for your practice and to outsource other activities. Doing so is known as focusing on the “highest use of your time” – an essential concept for self-employed doctors.

Ask for referrals. Referrals are the best way to begin the process of searching for a subcontractor or virtual assistant. Ask friends, family and other practitioners who they’ve used or who they know who does the type of work you wish to have done. If you’re not able to find virtual assistants this way, go to the International Virtual Assistants Association website at www.ivaa.com to submit a request for proposal.

Shop around. Once you have a list of individuals, contact each one by phone or e-mail to find out if they are accepting new business. If so, describe your project and ask if they would be interested in bidding on it. Try to obtain bids from at least three contractors. This will give you an idea regarding the market value of the services and allow you to see how different contractors charge.

Be specific. The more you know about your project, the more accurate the bidding process will be. Telling a web designer you “need a website” isn’t nearly as specific as telling a web designer you “need a 10-page website for which you’ll write the copy and prepare a site map.”

Arrange a phone meeting to discuss the bid. This will give you the opportunity to further assess the contractor’s style. Is he easy to talk to? Does she answer your questions directly, thoroughly, and in a way you can easily understand? How well does he listen to you? Does this person seem like someone you could work with?

Trust your instinct. I believe the relationship you have with your subcontractors is just as, if not more, important than their technical skills. It makes no sense to hire someone who’s technically proficient if you aren’t going to be able to communicate or work with her.

Don’t buy on price alone. While you may be tempted to select the cheapest bid, this isn’t always the wisest way to select a virtual assistant. As mentioned above, there’s more to outsourcing than cost. You want to be sure you’re working with someone you trust and are comfortable with, as well as someone who possesses the skills necessary to complete the job.

After these criteria are met, then you should consider price.

Once you’ve selected a virtual assistant, be sure to seal your agreement in writing. The following guidelines will enable you to find a virtual assistant who helps your business instead of hindering it.

Employee problems you never envisioned

In my many years of dealing with legal issues affecting dentists and their professional lives, there are situations that are unexpected.

Sometimes reality overtakes our imagination and creates problems that seem to spiral out of control. While we as dentists strive to practice our profession with expertise and diligence, taking care to do good dentistry, servicing our patients and keeping all records in good order, we are sometimes reminded, in a not so positive way, that we work with other people. There are the unavoidable patient problems, but there are also staff issues, which can be very complex and at times costly.

As my readers know, I use past client problems to illustrate and educate, while changing the parties’ names and circumstances, but still leaving the basic structure of the legal problem intact.

Take a certain Dr. Brown who runs a successful dental practice. His staff is well trained, his manuals are in place and updated, and he has designated an assistant – let’s call her Nancy – to be the OSHA compliance officer for the practice to ensure that the employment-related policies are implemented correctly.

Problems had arisen in the past with Nancy’s work ethic, her ability to oversee the OSHA program, and her demands for raises, special bonuses and other favorable treatments which Dr. Brown saw as unwarranted. These problems came finally to a head when another one of her bonus demands was rejected. Nancy resigned from her position, claiming in writing that the office’s non-adherence to OSHA protocols made it impossible for her to continue to work for her employer.

Nancy then lodged a complaint with OSHA enforcement authorities, accusing the dental office of OSHA violations. In addition, she filed for unemployment benefits on the basis of “constructive discharge.” In her filing, she explained that she was forced to resign because of the office’s OSHA infractions and the dentist’s refusal to come into compliance with OSHA requirements despite her efforts.

The dentist, as well as the entire office staff, felt betrayed: the former employee had taken this too far. First, she had demanded increased financial benefits on several occasions, despite her lack of due diligence in keeping the office in compliance with OSHA protocols. Then she used her own negligence in overseeing the OSHA program as the reason for filing a complaint, while also demanding unemployment benefits.

Given these circumstances and perceptions, conflict was inevitable. However, as it turned out, Dr. Brown – and not Nancy – found himself on the losing side. You may ask: How can this be? Keep in mind, any time you engage in legal actions, proof counts and an unassailable trail of documentation as well as quick action to head off problems is important.

Consider these facts: Nancy was smart enough to stay one step ahead of the game, while using the appearance of a concerned employee to her advantage. Her position was strengthened immeasurably by the fact that the OSHA investigation she instigated did find shortcomings, and the office was fined. This combination proved highly damaging to the employer’s position. Any explanation by the dentist that the OSHA violations were “minor” or that they were precipitated by the “incompetence” of a disgruntled employee or that the OSHA complaint was in fact a “revenge action” by that employee sounded unconvincing in that situation and could not be proven. Not surprisingly, it did not carry the day.

How could the dentist have prevented this meltdown in his office? There are, in fact, several steps that could have been taken to prevent, or at least mitigate, the damages caused here.

First and foremost, the claim that an employee or former employee acts out of “revenge” or has a history of poor performance, while making unjustified financial demands, is a lot more convincing if that history can be documented in terms of repeated performance evaluations. Such evaluations should document specifically the shortcomings of the employee; an improvement period should be spelled out, which should be followed by another performance evaluation. These actions should either result in a satisfactory review of the employee or additional actions by the employer, such as written warnings and possibly termination. In the above case, a paper trail of shortcomings pertaining to Nancy’s OSHA oversight responsibilities would have gone a long way to substantiate the employer’s position that Nancy’s negligence was primarily to blame for the office’s non-compliance with OSHA regulations.

Secondly, if an internal performance review had determined that the OSHA program was not in good hands, this duty should have been immediately assigned to someone else and appropriate corrections should have been made internally prior to any possible OSHA investigation. Nancy should not have been allowed to resign, but should have been dismissed long before she had reason to claim “constructive discharge.”

There are additional consequences to consider. An employer can file an objection to any claim for unemployment benefits if the employee was terminated because she neglected her job duties and jeopardized the safety of the office. In that case, a substantiated OSHA violation would have supported the employer’s position and justified the employee’s termination. Since this was not done, the former employee was able to use her employer’s position and justified the employee’s termination. The reverse.

This case demonstrates again that successful legal action requires good documentation, quick action and the right timing. Mere say-so rarely carries the day, and passivity in dealing with a festering office problem can often be damaging.

More about HIPPA

Readers of my column in the July/August issue of the CDS Review, titled “So You Thought You Had HIPAA under Control” may be interested in the July 14 New York Times article called “Standards Issued for Electronic Health Records.” It offers further reflections on the difficult compliance issues if the Electronic Health Records bill becomes law in its current form.

Editor’s note: The above article does not constitute legal advice but is for educational purposes only. In order to obtain legal advice, a personal consultation with an attorney is required. The views expressed in this column are those of the writer and not necessarily the opinions of the Chicago Dental Society.

Dr. von Heimburg is a practicing dentist and a practicing attorney in the Chicago area. She represents, advises and educates dental professionals, exclusively, in all matters relating to the practice of dentistry.
As the chair of the Chicago Dental Society Foundation, it is a pleasure to share with you the successes of the CDS Foundation.

With your help, the CDS Foundation, established in 2007, has sponsored both fixed and mobile dental clinics by providing $100,000 in financial support to access to care organizations. CDS has generously committed funding for education at both the University of Illinois College of Dentistry in Chicago and the Southern Illinois University School of Dental Medicine in Alton.

One of our 2009 grants supported Oral Health America’s Smiles Across America program. The organization doubled the number of exams and fluoride treatments to 121,000 Chicago Public School students. Likewise, the Children’s Clinic of Oak Park reported that its five-chair, full-time clinic provided 2,149 children with 6,119 dental visits last year. This year the CDS Foundation donated $40,000 to help fund the first Illinois Mission of Mercy (MOM) in partnership with the Illinois State Dental Society Foundation.

Volunteers at the Illinois MOM treated more than 1,953 dental patients June 11 and 12 at the Interstate Center in Bloomington. Numerous CDS members were among the 900 individuals who volunteered for the event. Dental care delivered included 1,739 extractions, 1,365 fillings, 43 stainless steel crowns, 72 endodontic procedures, and 155 lab services. More than $1 million in care was delivered in two days. Needless to say, the event surpassed all expectations.

Our efforts toward fulfilling our mission, improving oral health by providing funds to increase access to care and dental education, continue to thrive through the generosity of our donors and the dedication of our volunteers. With your support we will continue to respond to the needs of our community to ensure oral healthcare and dental education are possible for everyone. Your help is more important than ever.

For more information, please visit our website at www.chicagodentalsocietyfoundation.org or contact Executive Director Rodney Watt at 312.836.7301 or rwatt@chicagodentalsocietyfoundation.org.

We look forward to keeping you informed of CDS Foundation activities throughout the year, and we welcome your input.

Goldie’s Place
Student-run dental clinic offers eye-opening experience

by Rachel Azark

Chicago is home to the nation’s first skyscraper (built in 1884), and is the birthplace of both the car radio and the TV remote control. But it has something else we should be proud to show off. Established three years ago, the dental clinic at Goldie’s Place is home to the nation’s first student-run dental clinic.

Goldie’s Place, which started in 1996, is a support center for homeless people working to get back on their feet. It offers career training, resume building, a clothes closet and a dental clinic. During the week, a staff of volunteer dentists runs the agency’s dental clinic. But every other weekend the clinic is transformed into a student-run dental clinic.

Brian Homann, a third year dental student at the University of Illinois at Chicago (UIC) College of Dentistry, was there two years ago for the first four pilot sessions at the student-run dental clinic. He worked the front desk that first day, and experienced something that isn’t taught in dental school.

Mr. Homann says the clinic is unique in that everyone learns how to run a practice by learning how to book appointments and run the front desk – the business side of things.

Caswell Evans, a 1970 graduate of the Columbia University College of Dental Medicine and now the Associate Dean of Prevention and Public Health Services at the UIC College of Dentistry, said, “They [the students] are responsible for gathering supplies, scheduling appointments, working up treatment plans, the reception area, sterilization and taking radiographs.

“The students get first-hand experience with access to care, health disparities and a community that is unrecognized.”

The UIC student chapter of the American Association of Public Health Dentistry organizes the students in the clinic. The UIC chapter was the first student chapter of the AAPHD; Mr. Homann is the current president.

The executive board recruited student volunteers through e-mail, friends telling friends, and by word of mouth.

“We told them how we got these great experiences [at Goldie’s Place] and flocks of people came,” Mr. Homann said.

Once at the clinic, student volunteers are organized by their progress through dental school. First years work the front desk and do sterilization and radiology. Second years assist the providers and do cleanings, and the third and fourth years are assistants and providers. There is one faculty member present at all times.

“You get to do all these things you don’t get to do at school,” said Mr. Homann. “Because we are working at a community clinic we don’t have all the supplies like we do at school. Goldie’s teaches you how to think on your feet and modify what you’re doing when you don’t have the supply you need.”

Not only do students need to think on their feet, they also are learning about community medicine and working with a patient base that is homeless. Their ideas on what being homeless means are changing.

Mr. Homann took the health history of one patient and found out that he had a PhD and had worked as a college professor, but because his son had been sick and had racked up hundreds of thousands of dollars in bills, the patient had become homeless.

“That really hit it home with me. We see a lot of similar stories at Goldie’s – that someone has just come into some horrible circumstance,” said Mr. Homann.

Because these patients have encountered these experiences in their lives, they are incredibly grateful for the dental work because they have no other options.

Another patient had been homeless for 10 years and without any teeth. The students had a set of dentures made for him by dental labs that donate their services.

“He had a huge smile on his face. He gave everyone in the clinic high fives and hugs and then danced his way out of the clinic. He was going to go eat solid food for the first time in 10 years,” said Mr. Homann.

For the students, Goldie’s Place has been great for giving them real world experience; and for the patients who have received the treatment, they are able to go back out into the world with a new smile.

SEPTEMBER/OCTOBER 2010 CDS REVIEW 23
UIC dental student places second in research competition
University of Illinois at Chicago College of Dentistry DDS/PhD student Bojana Bojovic won second place in the Senior Category at the Edward Hatton Student Research Competition held at the American Association of Dental Research (AADR) meeting in Washington, DC.

“I presented my research on the role of the telomere binding protein TRF2 in controlling stem cell phenotypes in oral cancer,” she explained. “The ends of our chromosomes – called telomeres – get shorter with age, and we have shown that this shortening results in more aggressive oral cancer. My research demonstrated that loss of TRF2 occurs in human oral cancer and results in increased metastasis of oral cancer stem cells.”

Ms. Bojovic had submitted an abstract on her research to a panel of judges who selected only nine competitors from the entire country.

“It is such an honor to be recognized for this prestigious award from among such an outstanding group of student researchers,” Bojovic said. “I hope this recognition will encourage more young researchers to consider cancer research. Oral cancer affects far too many of our patients, and much more research is needed to understand and treat this disease.”

Oral Health America advocates for an end to child hunger and obesity
Oral Health America joined 128 organizations in an advertisement this summer that called on Congress to pass a comprehensive child nutrition bill. The ad, organized by Feeding America, appears in Roll Call and CQ Today, both Capitol Hill newspapers.

“With 1 in 4 kids at risk of hunger, and 1 in 3 obese or overweight, the time for strong action is now,” the ad states. “Our nation’s goals are to end child hunger by 2015 and solve childhood obesity in a generation.”

“Ensuring that children have healthy, nutritious food is vital to their ability to grow, learn, sleep and succeed,” said Beth Truett, president and CEO of Oral Health America. “Oral health is both a result of good nutrition, and also contributes to children’s health, well-being and ability to eat healthy foods.” A copy of the ad can be found at http://web17.streamhoster.com/ddc/AHA/2010/089-1857_Roll_Call_AdHR.PDF.

Oral Health America’s mission is to change lives by connecting communities with resources to increase access to oral healthcare, education and advocacy for all Americans, especially those most vulnerable.

UIC hires support to create digital learning resources
Although teaching is an ancient profession, that does not mean faculty can not teach in new ways. Nancy Norman, an instructional technologist at UIC’s new Office of Dental Education, has been hired to help faculty do just that.

“I’m here to support and assist faculty in preparing to use new technology in instruction, especially as we move to the new DMD curriculum with small groups and independent learning,” Ms. Norman explained. “We want to develop digital learning resources such as recorded lectures and other computer-based modules for faculty and students.

“My role is to work with faculty in developing those sorts of things, guiding them through the process. I also do instructional design, so I can assist in designing media for computer-based learning,” she continued.

She also has an interest in robotics, a subject known to the College through the work of Arnold Steinberg, a professor of periodontics, and his PerioSim haptic 3-D virtual reality teaching and training simulator. “I hope to lend my expertise to endeavors like that,” she said.

Ms. Norman’s previous post at UIC was instructional design coordinator for the Department of Medical Education at the College of Medicine. She also previously worked for UIC’s Department of Spanish, French, Italian and Portuguese, and spent 15 years as an instructional designer and project manager for the Loyola University Chicago Center for Instructional Design.
Gov. Quinn signs laws that improve access to dental care

Illinois Governor Patrick Quinn at the University of Illinois at Chicago (UIC) College of Dentistry signed a bill into law July 23 that makes it easier for licensed dentists who live out-of-state to provide voluntary care to low-income Illinois families. He also signed legislation to create a shared database to help Illinois’ schools to improve their nutritional and physical activity policies and programs, as well as a third bill concerning dental records confidentiality.

Gov. Quinn was welcomed to the College by UIC Chancellor Paula Allen-Meares; UIC College of Dentistry Dean Bruce Graham; and UIC College of Dentistry Department of Pediatric Dentistry Head Indru Punwani.

“Keeping Illinois’ children and families healthy is one of my most important duties,” said Gov. Quinn. “This important legislation will help more families see a dentist and help our school districts develop better healthy practices for our children.”

Senate Bill 3061 allows the state to issue temporary permits to dentists and dental hygienists who are licensed in other states and will provide free care in Illinois. To qualify for a permit, the dentist or dental hygienist must meet Illinois’ dental standards and intend to provide voluntary care. The temporary permit may not exceed 10 days.

The law will help encourage more dentists to treat low-income families at free clinics throughout Illinois. The legislation passed the Illinois General Assembly unanimously. It takes effect immediately.

Gov. Quinn also signed a new law that requires the State Board of Education to develop and maintain a nutritional and physical activity best practices database for use in schools and school districts. The database will contain the results of any wellness-related fitness testing done by local school districts, as well as information on successful nutrition and physical activity programs and policies implemented by school districts.

The database will be accessible to all local school districts and will serve as an important tool for developing policies and programs to improve the health of Illinois’ children. Senate Bill 3706 takes effect immediately.

Gov. Quinn also signed Senate Bill 3025, which amends the Dental Practice Act and will keep confidential dental records subpoenaed in any Board of Dentistry investigation of a dentist. The legislation takes effect immediately.
Chocolate facts and fiction

by Joanna Brown

Does your calendar have a big red circle around Sept. 13? It’s Milton Hershey’s birthday. Known as a tenacious entrepreneur who started several businesses before he found success, Mr. Hershey is celebrated as a candy mogul and generous philanthropist who cared as much for his employees and his community as he did for the delicious products they brought to the masses. So peel back that shiny silver wrapper and celebrate Mr. Hershey’s legacy.

And you can do so without guilt. Today, the Hershey Center for Health and Nutrition investigates and promotes the chemistry and health benefits of cocoa, chocolate, nuts and other ingredients. The results of these investigations guide new products and product development for The Hershey Company, of course, but they are also communicated to the consumers who enjoy these sweet treats – in moderation.

Facts

Although many do not think of nutrition when they think about chocolate, the truth of the matter is that chocolate contains a very complex nutrition profile. The nutrition of chocolate lies within each of its primary ingredients: cocoa, cocoa butter and milk (for milk chocolate).

The cocoa bean is at the heart of every chocolate product. Interestingly, the cocoa bean is not a “bean” or any type of legume; rather it is actually the seed of the fruit of the cocoa tree. Cocoa beans are about 54 percent fat, 31 percent carbohydrate, 11 percent protein, 3 percent polyphenols and less than 1 percent minerals.

After a cocoa bean has been fermented, roasted and ground, it is then pressed into cocoa powder and cocoa butter. The cocoa powder is a concentrated source of polyphenols and minerals, including iron, magnesium, phosphorus, potassium and copper. The fiber present within the cocoa bean also lies within the cocoa powder portion, providing 2g of dietary fiber for every 5g (1 Tbsp) of cocoa powder. The cocoa powder also contains a small amount of protein.

The naturally occurring fat within the cocoa bean is referred to as cocoa butter. In general about 37.5 percent of the fat within cocoa butter is unsaturated fat and about 61.4 percent is saturated fat. About half of this saturated fat is stearic acid, a fatty acid that does not increase levels of LDL-cholesterol.

Although many of the health benefits surrounding chocolate are focused on dark chocolate with its concentrated amount of antioxidants, there are some additional healthy nutrients inherent to the milk used in the production of milk chocolate. The milk contains calcium, potassium and magnesium, all important nutrients for building strong bones and teeth and for cardiovascular health. Milk is also a good source of high-quality protein.

Fiction

The following are a few myths about chocolate, as explained by the Hershey Center for Health and Nutrition.

Eating a 1.4 oz. milk chocolate bar instead of a carbohydrate-rich snack was shown to increase HDL (good) cholesterol levels.
Chocolate is loaded with cholesterol-raising fat.
Cocoa butter, the fat in chocolate, might be expected to increase blood cholesterol levels because it contains saturated fat. But stearic acid, the main saturated fat found in milk chocolate, doesn’t raise cholesterol levels the same way that other saturated fats do. When consumed in moderation, chocolate does not increase cholesterol levels. In fact, eating a 1.4 oz. milk chocolate bar instead of a carbohydrate-rich snack was shown to increase HDL (good) cholesterol levels.

People with diabetes must give up chocolate.
Chocolate does not need to be completely avoided by people with diabetes. People are often surprised to learn that chocolate has a low glycemic index. Chocolate adds flavor and enjoyment when used as an occasional treat as part of a well-balanced diet. Recent research suggests that dark chocolate may actually improve insulin sensitivity in people with normal and high blood pressure and improve endothelial dysfunction in people with diabetes, although more studies are needed.

Chocolate causes weight gain.
Chocolate can be a part of an overall healthy lifestyle when consumed in moderation. The key to managing weight is balancing the calories consumed each day with the amount of energy expended from physical activity. An average chocolate bar contains about 200-220 calories, which is low enough to be included in a weight control diet if substituted for other high calorie foods. If you keep your portion sizes small, the occasional treat can be a guilt-free part of your diet.

Chocolate is high in caffeine.
A typical serving of milk chocolate contains relatively small amounts of caffeine — slightly more than an 8 oz. cup of decaffeinated coffee. Dark chocolates contain more caffeine; caffeine content can range from 25-40 mg per serving. A typical 8 oz. cup of regular coffee contains 65-120 mg of caffeine.

Chocolate causes hyperactivity.
Chocolate and other sweets are often blamed when children get overly excited and active. But research indicates that there is no relationship between consumption of sugar-containing foods and changes in behavior. It is believed that the environment in which sugary foods are often eaten, such as a birthday party or other celebration, is what affects behavior.

Chocolate lacks any nutritional value.
Chocolate and cocoa contain flavanols — antioxidant compounds also found in tea and red wine. These compounds have been associated with supporting heart health. A typical dark chocolate bar contains more antioxidant capacity than 3 cups of green tea, 1 1/4 glasses of red wine, or 3/4 cup of blueberries. In addition, chocolate also contains minerals and dietary fiber.

Chocolate must contain at least 70 percent cacao to be good for you.
In general, the percent cacao can be an indicator of the flavanol content of a chocolate — i.e., a 70 percent cacao chocolate will typically contain more flavanols than a 50 percent cacao chocolate. However, there is nothing magical about a 70 percent cacao chocolate. In an 18-week study, individuals who consumed a small amount of 50 percent cacao chocolate experienced a significant reduction in systolic and diastolic blood pressure. A recent study showed short-term improvements in blood flow and blood pressure after consumption of a 60 percent cacao dark chocolate.

Chocolate causes acne.
Studies going as far back as the 1960s have failed to show any relationship between chocolate consumption and acne. Preliminary research has actually demonstrated a beneficial impact of cocoa on skin health, measured as improved photo protection and dermal blood circulation.

Ms. Brown is the senior writer for the Chicago Dental Society.
Dr. Truman Brophy was a pioneer in cleft palate surgery

by Walter F. Lamacki, DDS

In the 1870s, it was estimated that only 25 percent of Chicago dentists had earned a degree from a dental college. Preceptors in busy dental offices trained most dentists. The length of training was arbitrary and certainly unregulated.

That was to change when Dr. Truman Brophy founded, owned and served as dean of Illinois’ first dental school, The Collegiate Department of the Chicago Dental Infirmary in 1879.

Dr. Brophy was born in 1848 in Goodings Grove, just southwest of Chicago. He earned a dental degree from the Pennsylvania College of Dental Surgery in 1872.

He was a preceptor in Dr. J.O. Farnsworth’s office at 116 Randolph St. in Chicago at the age of 19; three years later he bought the practice, only to see the offices engulfed by flames in the Great Chicago Fire of 1871. Rather than rebuild the office, he decided to get his dental degree.

He became a member of the Chicago Dental Society in 1876 and for the next 50 years he was a prominent figure at CDS, Illinois State Dental Society and American Dental Association meetings.

Dr. Brophy, like a number of his colleagues, earned a medical degree in 1880 from Rush Medical College; he became a faculty member and for the next 26 years he taught oral surgery. He was an early advocate of making dentistry a specialty of medicine, but by 1885 he abandoned the concept as unworkable. As a result of his change of heart, the school was renamed The Chicago College of Dental Surgery (CCDS) in 1885.

He was a pioneer in cleft palate surgery, performing the first closure of a congenital cleft palate, but his real love was dental education.

formed, which played interludes at the lengthy commencement ceremonies. Dr. R.B. Tuller, clinical professor of operative dentistry, composed a campaign song, “The National Republican League March.” Dr. Tuller received a complimentary letter from President McKinley.

No band can exist without a football team. CCDS’s staunch 11 played teams from Rush, Northwestern Dental, and Hahneman Medical College. Hahneman no longer exists, its demise perhaps hastened by the stout beatings they took from CCDS lads.

Dr. Brophy and his partners, Dr. William H. Logan – his son-in-law – and C.N. Johnson sold CCDS to Loyola University in 1927. Loyola kept CCDS in the school’s title for several generations because of his fame.

Dr. Brophy died in 1928, 60 years before his beloved school would close its doors.
Don’t take your stress out on your mouth

How are Americans dealing with these difficult economic times? They’re taking their stress out on their teeth, if you ask dentists. In the fall of 2009, the Chicago Dental Society surveyed more than 250 of its members to see if stressing about the economy was wreaking havoc on patients’ oral health.

Nearly 75 percent of dentists surveyed said their patients reported increased stress in their lives. And 65 percent of dentists said they have seen an increase in jaw clenching and teeth grinding among their patients.

Jaw clenching and teeth grinding, or bruxism, can be a temporary nuisance during stressful times that causes headaches and sleep problems, but it also can cause lasting problems for your teeth and gums. It can lead to muscle inflammation, broken teeth or even damaged dental work, such as crowns and fillings.

The following tips from dentists should help you cope with the pressures of the world – before your teeth pay the price.

Take a pain reliever. If grinding and clenching is causing you headaches and muscle soreness in your jaw, take an anti-inflammatory medication, like Advil or Aleve, shortly before bedtime.

Massage. Try massaging the muscles along your jaw line, from the joint near your ear all the way to your chin, to relieve jaw soreness.

Avoid caffeine. Coffee may help you get going in the morning, but caffeine combined with stress can lead to increased muscle tension. If cutting caffeine completely out of your life won’t work for you, you should try to avoid drinking it within several hours of bedtime.

Be careful with your diet. When the muscles in the jaw get inflamed, it’s best to go easy on them for a while by avoiding foods that require vigorous chewing. Ice and gum chewing is a definite no-no, and so is that triple-decker-cheeseburger that almost requires you to unhinge your jaw to eat it.

Exercise. You didn’t want to hear this one, did you? But exercise relieves stress and reduces anxiety, the two biggest culprits of grinding.

Meditate. Try a yoga class to achieve some relaxation. Even taking a moment before bedtime to do some deep breathing can be a big help.

Wear a mouth guard. If you have serious grinding and clenching issues, talk to your dentist about a mouth guard to wear at night.

Ryan Skale tied the knot in Columbus, OH, May 15. He and his blushing bride thoroughly enjoyed their honeymoon in Great Exuma, Bahamas, where they spent their time in the clear blue ocean, scuba diving. Ryan also attended the Operation Smile Casino Night benefit, which was great fun!

Many of our colleagues gathered to perform screenings for kids at the Special Olympics May 5, including Ahmed El-Maghrawy, Paula Lobo and Anjali Talati.

Sergio Rubinstein had the grand opportunity to contribute an entire chapter to a book: Parameters for Integrating Aesthetics with Function in The Art of Treatment Planning: Dental and Medical Approaches to the Face and Smile.

Christine Yonker has joined the private practice of Alan Nidetz and Sergio Rubinstein in Skokie.

While Christine is a recent graduate of Indiana University, we are extremely impressed with her clinical skills and charming personality. She is new to Chicago and is interested in exploring all the city has to offer. Her personal interests include traveling, baking and all things fitness-related. Her passion for dentistry is contagious and her presence in the office is already evident.

On June 26, Willow Lake Orthodontics hosted its first bake sale to benefit Cookies for Kids’ Cancer. The patients and staff baked and helped sell cookies at the annual Glenview 3v3 Summer Soccer Fest. Barbara Sargos and Matthew Israel are very proud of and thankful to all those who helped make this event such a success.

The middle daughter of Kathleen Christie-Jaroch, Mackenzie, decided to attend the University of Arizona in Tucson this year. She went to a soccer camp there, where she was offered a roster spot on the soccer team. She gladly embraced the offer from this Division 1 PAC 10 school and her family is very excited for her unexpected invitation, which turned out to be bittersweet since she had to leave a month earlier than originally planned. They grow up so fast!

Congratulations to Dorothy Anasinski, who recently became a Diplomat of the American Board of Periodontology. Dorothy can also add the title of Executive Director of Corporate Relations for the American Association of Women Dentists to her repertoire.

As the summer comes to an end, we look forward to the beginning of the 2010-11 Northwest Side branch meeting season. I would like to take this opportunity to introduce myself. My name is John Nowak, and I will serve as your new branch correspondent. For those of you who may not know me, I have a practice limited to endodontics on the northwest side of Chicago. If you wish to submit any news for the CDS Review please either call me at 773.792.2369 or send an e-mail to the address above.

Dan Janowski welcomed Eric Kunath as his new associate August 1. Eric is a graduate of University of Colorado School of Dentistry and received his endodontics degree from Fort Bragg.
North Carolina. His wife’s name is Sophie, and they have two daughters: Mia (7) and Ella (3). We recognize and salute Eric for his 10 years of military service.

Walter Jagodzinski with his wife, Nancy, traveled to Colorado to enjoy the beautiful summer views of the Rocky Mountains.

Larry Kolar’s son, Brad, played in a concert with the Emerson Middle School Jazz Band. His daughter Stephanie (Steffi) received a trophy for her participation in the Franklin Elementary School Variety Show.

David Wojtowicz performed for Chamber Opera Chicago as an aristocrat, the post card vendor and a plantation slave in Lacuona’s Maria la O – a Chicago premier in English translation. “While everyone has heard his famous piano virtuoso composition, Malaguena, few Chicagoans were aware of his captivating Afro-Cuban beat, which sweeps you from sultry/moody to vibrant exuberance. Lots of toe tapping and spontaneous applause made this a joy to sing and dance to these sold-out performances,” said Dave.

Next came the Mozart Requiem, with orchestra at Northwestern University. “Between Mozart lovers and film fans – this was the underscore to much of the movie Amadeus – this concert attracted a large crowd indoors despite a tempting-ly gorgeous summer evening,” Dave noted.

Dave’s upcoming performances include the role of David Bascomb in Light Opera Works’ performance of Carousel and Benny in Guys and Dolls with Trinity Players.

Spencer Bloom, attended the Scroll Saw Picnic (“Convention”) in Dallas. In addition to dentistry, Spencer enjoys his hobby of scroll sawing which is evident in the two ribbons (first place and Best in Class) he was awarded at this year’s picnic.

Our branch thanks David Kumamoto for his support and leadership as the past CDS president. Chet Klos sent me a picture of David from the May 2010 UIC Graduation.

I hope everyone has been enjoying their summer, spending time with family and friends, and hopefully getting in a little vacation time, too! It will be great to reconnect and share stories as we start up our branch meetings again in the fall.

The Northwest Suburban Branch held its Installation of Officers Night April 6 at the Makray Memorial Golf Club. We welcomed the following members as officers for the 2010-11 term who will serve our branch this coming year: Tina Smith-Arptino, president; Scott Smoron, president-elect; Petra von Heimburg, secretary; Will Perkinson, treasurer; and Renee Pappas, vice president.

The Arcolian Dental Arts Society also held its Installation Night for the 2010-11 officers. Serving as president, Angela Falcone; president-elect, Vicki Ursitti; secretary, Joe Favia; treasurer, Russ

I hope everyone has been enjoying their summer, spending time with family and friends, and hopefully getting in a little vacation time, too! It will be great to reconnect and share stories as we start up our branch meetings again in the fall.

The Northwest Suburban Branch held its Installation of Officers Night April 6 at the Makray Memorial Golf Club. The Arcolian Dental Arts Society also held its Installation Night for the 2010-11 officers. Serving as president, Angela Falcone; president-elect, Vicki Ursitti; secretary, Joe Favia; treasurer, Russ
Pollina, and vice president, Ben LoGiudice. Sam Cascio was master of ceremonies, and Immediate Past-President Joseph Baldassano was presented with the President’s Plaque.

Scott Smoron has been busy this summer running marathons. On April 10, he ran the McNaughton Park Trail Run, a 50-mile race just outside Peoria with almost two miles of elevation change during the race. He also ran the Race to Wrigley 5k, the North Shore Half Marathon and the Wisconsin Marathon. What an achievement, Scott. Congratulations!

Scott also co-hosted a Sure Smile Conference in June at the Marriott Oak Brook, with branch members Michele Arnold, Amy Lies, William Putzbach, and Angela Willox in attendance. Participants spent the morning taking an in-depth look into this new and exciting orthodontic technology and enjoyed lunch afterwards. Thanks to Scott for the invitation to a great, informative presentation!

Several branch members volunteered their time at the Illinois Mission of Mercy in Bloomington June 11-12. More than $1 million in free dental care was provided and nearly 2,000 patients were seen in the two-day period. A second Illinois MOM event will be held in 2012 at a site to be determined.

Volunteers from the branch included Phil Fijal, Mike Durbin, Renee Pappas, Stephanie Sloopke, Scott Smoron, Russ Pollina, Ed Siegel, Bob Slovick and Mike Higgins. What a terrific way to give back to the underserved community. Thanks to everyone who participated!

Please check out the schedule for our 2010-11 branch meetings (www.cds.org/for_your_practice/branches/nw_suburban.html) and plan to join us for some great presentations, discussions, meals and CE! I look forward to seeing many of you there.

As always, please feel free to contact me with any branch news at my office by phone, 847.670.9020, or e-mail angiewillox@hotmail.com or smilesforkids@comcast.net.

South Suburban

The South Suburban Second Annual “Deadliest Catch” excursion took place on a balmy June morning from St. Joseph, MI. Organized by Loren Feldner, the finest (and not-so-great) anglers from the south suburbs ventured out on a morning fishing excursion on Lake Michigan. The prizes to be had were lake trout, king salmon, steelhead and coho. The adventurers were treated to a pleasant lunch and fish fry after their adventure.

Congratulations to Kevin Patterson’s son who took home the biggest fish of the day. The award for “biggest fish story” is still up for grabs. Nominations are still being accepted!
Greetings! Four months have passed since our last visit and, as I write this, we are in the middle of a rather hot and frequently wet summer. However, as you read this summer will basically be over and once again our West Side Branch members will be looking forward to our monthly meetings and another successful and rewarding year.

The West Side Branch officers for 2010-11 are: Don Bennett, president; John Perna, vice president; Frank Orland, secretary; Fred Orendach, treasurer; and Shafa Amirsoltani, librarian. West Side Branch director is Don Tuck.

Before I go further, the West Side Branch extends special kudos to Gary Clemens who served as branch president this past year and did an outstanding job. Thanks, Gary, for a job well done!

The West Side/ West Suburban Branch Golf Outing was held at the beautiful Old Oak Country Club June 2. The weather, which had been inclement the previous day, changed the morning of the golf outing and turned into a very pleasant day. West Side Branch PGA wannabees included Russ Umbricht, Don Tuck, Ralph Cress, Kamal Vibhakar, Greg Matke, Dick Perry and Gary Alder. As usual, our golfers were all outstanding and shared a most enjoyable day.

On July 17, CDS hosted a day at Ravinia for the second consecutive year. The day’s performance featured the Chicago Symphony Orchestra and two excellent piano soloists. Prior to the performance a buffet dinner was served under a tent, and following the performance dessert and again more visiting under the tent.

West Side Branch members present to enjoy this wonderful day included our CDS President Mike Stablein, Dick Perry, Jim Bryniarski, Frank and Carla Orland, Don Tuck, Dean Politis, Sue Zelazo-Smith and Chuck Thometz.

The Orlands came with their son, Geoffrey, and his fiancé, Jennifer Chiariello, who had become engaged two nights previous – which made the day extra special for Frank and Carla.

Speaking of Frank and Carla Orland, the family reports things have been going well in their new office and that it has been ideal and a pleasure to have daughter Gina Orland working and sharing with them in their practice.

In addition, having Gina with them to watch over the practice has given them the opportunity to do things they have been waiting to do for a couple of decades. In late May they drove to Sarasota, and spent a week along the gulf coast visiting with friends. In addition they have been getting to their town-home in the Galena Territory more frequently these days.

Jim Bryniarski and Leona Hubatch report that their son, Jeff, as of mid-July has been deployed to the gulf for two separate two-week sessions, and was scheduled for a third deployment in...
August to assist in the gulf cleanup following the BP oil leak.

Jeff works as an environmental engineer for Weston Solutions and his company is working in conjunction with the Federal Environmental Protection Agency. Some two years previous Jeff had been thrust into a similar situation following Hurricane Ike.

It appears that the Illinois Mission of Mercy sponsored by the Illinois State Dental Society and the ISDS Foundation June 11-12 was a resounding success. An estimated $1 million in dental care was delivered to patients through the volunteer efforts of Illinois dentists and auxiliary personnel. West Side Branch members who volunteered their services included Don Bennett, Jim Bryniarski, Mike Santucci and George Zehak.

The ISDS Capital Conference took place April 29-30. West Side Branch members had the opportunity to meet with our Illinois legislators and share their information, ideas and expertise. Participants included Fred Orendach, Don Tuck, Russ Umbricht, Ed Walsh, George Zehak and Sue Zelazo-Smith.

Eleanor and Richard Perry celebrated the birth of their tenth grandchild, Samuel Richard Crase, born April 17. Proud parents are Drs. Teresa and Cody Crase.

The Perrys also took a train trip to Kansas City with nine-year-old twin grandsons, Jack and Aidan. While there they watched the Kansas City Royals/White Sox game (which the White Sox won). Dick also served as Regional Board Examiner June 11-13 at the Meharry Medical College School of Dentistry in Nashville.

While his wife, Maria, was visiting family in Italy, George Zehak traveled to Florida for a week in late July with son Conor (high school junior) and daughter Natalie (college junior). They were based in Weston, but also hit Del Ray Beach, South Beach, Boca Raton, Ft. Lauderdale and Orlando. Definitely not an R&R vacation.

George continues his very active schedule. In March and again in June George traveled to Springfield to attend meetings of the ISDS Board of Trustees. He also served as Regional Board Examiner at the University of Illinois at Chicago (his alma mater) and the University of Michigan dental schools, and as Board Examiner for hygienists at the Indiana University/Purdue University school for hygienists this past spring. In early July, George attended the annual meeting of the Academy of General Dentistry in New Orleans, where he served as an alternate delegate.

Special bulletin: Long time West Side Branch member (and, I might add, a very active member) Ed Walsh announced the sale of his practice and his retirement from active practice as of July 1. Things happened very rapidly, negotiations began in mid-May and were completed by July 1. Ed assures me that he will continue to be active in CDS and we will see him at our meetings and activities. The West Side Branch wishes Ed much happiness in his retirement.

Kamal and Charu Vibhakar vacationed in Turkey May 11-26 and combined some well-deserved R&R with considerable sightseeing. The Vibhakars found Turkey to be very beautiful and rich in history. They report that their daughter, Brindy, has successfully completed her freshman year in dental school and recently finished Part I of the National Board Examination. They also report that their son, Neil, graduated from Kellogg Business School and immediately accepted a position with Morgan Stanley as an analyst.

Late breaking news: Marcie and Russ Umbricht announced the July 31 wedding of their son David to Denise Grossman. The marriage is the third in the family for the Umbrichts, who have four children. David is a manager at Poor Phil’s, where West Side Branch members sometimes gather before and/or after branch meetings.

Sue Zelazo-Smith and husband, Tom, report that their son, Yost, served an engineering internship this summer in Austin, TX, and will be a senior at the University of Illinois in Champaign this year. Also, daughter Carolyn attended French Voyager camp at Bemidji, MN, speaking only French (what else) and living in tents and canoes while at camp.

Sue and Chuck Thometz attended the annual AAO Annual Session in Washington, DC, in the spring. The highlight of their visit was a personal tour of the White House by a friend who works for the government two blocks from the White House.

Chuck also reports that the practice transition with new owner Darshana Novick is working out very nicely.

Meanwhile, Darshana reports that she and her husband, Rob, and daughter, Mira, spent 10 days in Michigan over the Fourth of July at Rob’s family home and they had a lively time – as might be expected considering that there were five children age 3 or younger sharing the home.

That’s all for now. Auf wiedersein.

We welcome our new branch president, Don Kipper! Installation Night was May 14, held at Lucky Strike Lanes and Lounge in Lombard. It was a night of food, fun and drink and what appeared to be some form of bowling.

ISDS secretary Brian Soltys did the honors of installing: Brian Del Carlo, president-elect; Paul Kempf, vice president; Derrick Williamson, secretary; Doug Kay, treasurer; and Doug Chang, librarian. Then in a very special ceremony, Donald Kipper was installed by his uncle and mentor, Robert Banks, as branch president.

On June 2, the annual West Suburban/West Side Golf Outing was held at Old Oak Country Club in Homer Glen. More than 70 golfers attended, and although the clouds looked threatening, the only thunder heard was from the sound of drivers blasting golf balls down the fairways (and into the occasional tree or beverage cart). Golf was followed by a BBQ lunch, awards and prizes for all. Thanks again to our sponsors and all who came out that day.

Another event held in June was the Mission of Mercy in Bloomington. Hundreds of volunteers +1,900 patients + $975,000 in dental care = impact on the lives of all involved: PRICELESS! We thank the West Suburban Branch members and staff who helped make a difference: Robin Blakolb; Michael Bond; Andrew Browar and his daughter, Irena; Susan Burgess; Jeffery Chandler; Zivile Chirban; Gerald Ciebien; Timothy Crombie; John Gerding; Rosanne Harrington; Peter Hasiakos; Yihsiung Huang; Stephen Jagielo; Douglas Kay; Paul Kempf; Donald Kipper; Diane Kleiber; William Kleiber; Nancy and William Kort; Dot-tie Mackie, RDH; Joseph Maggio; James Maragos; Michael Morgan; Brian O’Donovan; Ronald Petrucci; Keith Rojek; Keith Suchy; Thomas Sullivan; Sharon Szeszyczki; Steven Temple; and Tami Wanless, RDH.

Lastly, The WSDS 2010-11 meetings program features the theme: “Doctor (Staff) Heal Thyself.” Expert speakers will discuss topics that can help us stay happier and healthier, and live longer. The dates, speakers and topics are as follows:

Oct. 12: Christine Palumbo, MBA, RD
Top Foods for a Long, Healthy Life

Nov. 9: Andrew Rosenson, MD
Coronary Artery Disease: Diagnosis and Prevention

Jan. 11, 2011: Mark Storer, DDS
Drug and Alcohol Addiction in Dentistry

March 8, 2011: Clinic Night

April 12, 2011: Tim Caruso, PT, MS
A Primer on Posture: Sit Straight. Mom Was Right. Don’t Be a Slouch!

So mark your calendar now and plan on attending.

Thank you, and remember that if you have any news, please let me know at kidak@aol.com.

President Profile

Donald Kipper, DDS | WEST SUBURBAN

Dr. Kipper earned his dental degree from the Loyola University School of Dentistry in 1987.

Home: Dr. Kipper lives in Glen Ellyn with his wife, Margaret, and son, Andrew. The family has four dogs: Duffy, Snickers and Carmel are 8 years old, and JJ is 2 years old.

Hobbies: Dr. Kipper enjoys spending time with his family and friends. He spends his free time trying to stay in shape and just completed the Naperville Sprint Triathlon.

What is your goal for the coming year? “(My goal is) to help our branch and its members develop and keep a healthy attitude both physically and mentally during these challenging times. As compassionate caregivers, we feel a responsibility to our families, staff and patients. This can lead to even more stress, which is why I chose the theme ‘Doctor (Staff) Heal Thyself’ for my program. Hopefully, members will pick up nuggets of information they can use in their daily lives, helping to make them, as well as their families and practices, better and healthier.”

CONTINUING EXCELLENCE IN DENTISTRY

“The Midwinter Meeting is one of the premier “happening” meetings of the year on a speaker’s calendar! With both quality and quantity attendance – which includes participants, exhibitors and speakers – one can rest assured that emerging technology will be unveiled at this event. By combining both quality CE and camaraderie, the Midwinter Meeting is the essence of a truly great dental meeting.”

― Sam Low, DDS

“I have had the privilege of speaking at the Midwinter Meeting for over 40 years, as well as at many other regional, national and international meetings. The quality, quantity and variety of programs presented at the CDS meeting are in the top of all international continuing education programs.

It is hard to equal the quality of the Midwinter Meeting. This highly eclectic, exciting program in a great city offers all of what dentists are seeking in continuing education.

There are only a few dental meetings that have it all – quality programs, enormous variety of topics, superb organization, a beautiful meeting venue, congenial staff and volunteer hosts, and entertainment and dining in a great city, and the CDS Midwinter Meeting is at the top of the list.”

Looking for a dental hygienist?

The CDS online Job Board helps connect dentists with dental hygienists

If you are looking to hire a dental hygienist, the online Job Board is the place to start your search. CDS offers this service to members and dental hygienists. CDS members may post positions available; dental hygienists seeking jobs may post their résumés; and each may browse the other’s postings. It is a great way to connect the job seekers with the job posters. And it is FREE!

Check out this recent addition to your Web site and don’t forget to tell your fellow members about it. Looking for a new dental hygienist just got really easy. For more information on the Job Board visit www.cds.org/jobboard.
Classifieds

place your ads online at WWW.CDS.ORG

Classified advertising rates to increase for 2011
Beginning with the January/February 2011 issue, classified advertising in the CDS Review will cost more. The changes take effect online Nov. 3.

Standard classifieds will cost $90 for the first 30 words, plus $2 for each additional word.
Display classifieds will cost $110 per column inch (roughly 30 words).

In addition, the CDS Review will offer a new category.
Premium standard classifieds are just like a standard text ad, but we will add a yellow background to help your ad stand out. The cost will be $100 for the first 30 words, plus $2 per each additional word.

SEPTEMBER/OCTOBER 2010 CDS REVIEW 55
As I have told many colleagues to the point of exasperating tedium, I treat the elderly in retirement communities.

It is challenging to deal with ever-changing health histories and medications along with memory loss, which often drifts into Alzheimer’s disease, the most common form of dementia.

Ah, but it can be so rewarding to treat the elderly.

This summer, I received a call from a woman who asked me to examine her friend, a retirement community resident who was rapidly losing weight because she couldn’t eat. The caller had her friend’s power of attorney (POA).

Examination of the patient revealed an ill-fitting upper denture and an unserviceable lower partial denture. Consent was given by the patient’s friend to make new dentures as quickly as possible. At the first appointment, I took final impressions and registered the bite. (I’ve developed techniques to make dentures in a short time, but that is a subject for another article.) I was positive that my recordings were accurate, and as I have often done before, I completed the appliances without a try-in.

The patient perked up when I placed her new dentures, and she smiled. The next day I visited her and found a more animated vital person.

I made a minor adjustment to the dentures; the patient had no further need for adjustments.

Three weeks later the caller informed me that her friend had died of a heart attack. She went on to say that her friend had put on weight and was cheery and proud of her new look.

“Don’t feel guilty about the short time my friend had her dentures; you immensely improved her quality of life,” the caller told me.

I had another lesson in the rewards of treating the elderly thanks to the son of an aging, frail mother who was another victim of mild dementia.

She had fractured a three-unit bridge at the gum line involving her two central incisors and a lateral incisor; she asked me if the bridge could be re-cemented, or if not, could a new one be made.

“Not possible. Her remaining teeth are loose.”

“Please make something to replace those front teeth for her dignity.”

And so we made her an acrylic partial with wrought clasps over the fractured teeth. When she saw the result, her smile told me all I need to know about the value of one’s dignity.

If my patients do not manage their own financial affairs, I call their responsible family member or POA for consent.

I am frequently asked, “Will I live long enough to make the cost of treatment worthwhile?”

Of course, there is no answer to that question.

As dentists, it is our privilege and a source of tremendous satisfaction to relieve pain and infection and to restore a smile.

But for me, I will always remember the two elderly patients who gave me the gratification of making their life better.
February is National Children’s Dental Health Month!

Dental Fear: Successfully Treating the Apprehensive Patient

Featuring Larry Sangrik, DDS

PRE-REGISTER ONLINE!
We encourage you to reserve your spot at the next CDS Regional Meeting by visiting www.cds.org.

Wednesday, Nov. 10
9 a.m.-2:30 p.m. • Drury Lane, 100 Drury Lane, Oakbrook Terrace

About our program:
Research indicates that over 70% of the adult American population finds dental treatment to be an anxiety-producing experience. Fortunately, today there are numerous choices to address dental fear. These range from simple behavior techniques to the use of medications in varying degrees. The most appropriate choice of apprehension management depends on the patient's degree of dental fear and the intensity of dental treatment.

Dr. Sangrik will present a dynamic lecture that covers the following topics:
• Medical emergencies in the dental office
• Dental fear
• Nitrous oxide sedation
• Monitoring vital signs

About our speaker:
Dr. Sangrik has practiced general dentistry in his hometown of Chardon, OH, since 1979. His practice emphasizes dental implants and treatment of apprehensive patients with intravenous sedation. Dr. Sangrik has presented lectures at dental meetings throughout the country on the prevention of medical emergencies in the dental office.

Target audience: Dentists and staff

Directions to Drury Lane: Call 630.530.8300

About CDS meetings:
Regional Meetings are FREE to all CDS members and their staffs, as well as dental hygienist members of the Illinois State Dental Society.

A fee of $250 is charged to dentists who are not CDS members and their staffs, which may be applied to membership for the current year.

Advance registration is not required, but CDS encourages you to pre-register online at www.cds.org.
