April 4 Regional Meeting minutes

The April 4 Regional Meeting of the Chicago Dental Society convened at the Drury Lane, Oakbrook Terrace, with CDS President John Gerding presiding.

Dr. Gerding called the meeting to order at 9:08 a.m.

Attention was directed to the minutes of the meeting of Nov. 9. Inasmuch as the official minutes of the meeting of Nov. 9 were published in the January/February issue of the CDS Review, a motion was entertained to dispense with reading them.

MOVED by Richard Holba, seconded by David Fulton Jr. and carried to dispense with reading the Nov. 9 minutes at this time.

MOVED by Dr. Fulton, seconded by Dr. Holba and carried to accept the minutes of the Nov. 9 meeting.

Attention was directed to the minutes of the meeting of Nov. 13. Inasmuch as the official minutes of the meeting of Nov. 13 were published in the January/February issue of the CDS Review, a motion was entertained to dispense with reading them.

MOVED by Denise Hale, seconded by George Zehak and carried to dispense with reading the Nov. 13 minutes at this time.

MOVED by Dr. Holba, seconded by Dr. Hale and carried to accept the minutes of the Nov. 13 meeting.

Attention was directed to the minutes of the meeting of Jan. 11. Inasmuch as the official minutes of the meeting of Jan. 11 were published in the March/April issue of the CDS Review, a motion was entertained to dispense with reading them.

MOVED by Dr. Zehak, seconded by Dr. Holba and carried to dispense with reading the Jan. 11 minutes at this time.

MOVED by Dr. Holba, seconded by Dr. Hale and carried to accept the minutes of the Jan. 11 meeting.

There were no reports of the Board, Standing or Special committees.

There was no new or unfinished business to report.

Dr. Gerding reminded the audience that per policy adopted by the CDS Board of Directors, the new registration policy for Regional Meetings was implemented beginning with the April 4 meeting. Registration for the Regional Meetings will now end 30 minutes after the actual start of the program. Attendees are issued bar coded badges that capture the time of entry. Each attendee’s badge will be scanned as he/she leaves at the end of the program. No partial credit will be issued. Continuing Education credit forms will be mailed/analyzed after the meeting. The CDS Board of Directors passed this new policy at the Dec. 8 Board meeting.

With no further business, Dr. Gerding called upon Regional Meeting Program Chair David Dooley to introduce Robert Fazio, DMD, who presented the program “Systemic Diseases as Related to Oral Health.”

The meeting was adjourned at 2:10 p.m.

Thank you

On behalf of the Chicago Dental Society Foundation, I would like to thank all who attended Stayin’ Alive: One Night of the Bee Gees Feb. 24 at the Park West during the Midwinter Meeting. Thanks to your support, we raised more than $20,000.

This concert was a lively evening of dancing, music and camaraderie among the dental community, in support of a common cause: championing better oral health for all. (Visit our Flickr slideshow at http://on.cds.org/fridayphotos)

The CDS Foundation has reached a milestone in our mission to address access to dental care and oral health education. Your CDS Foundation will open a dental clinic in DuPage County, while continuing to support dental programs in the metro Chicago area.

Not only is the clinic a major commitment to people in our communities who need our help, but the clinic will open exciting new doors for our CDS members and the community to directly improve the oral health of those who need care.

Please know that these accomplishments would not have been possible without you!

Thank you for everything you do to help the Chicago Dental Society Foundation. Together, we continue to improve oral health for all.

The CDS Review encourages readers to offer comments regarding topics of concern to the dental profession.

All submissions are edited for grammar and style in accordance with the Associated Press Stylebook and Briefing on Media Law.
In the March/April issue of the CDS Review, I began a two-part commentary on how the “12 points of the Scout Law” relates to what we as dentists do or should do in the practice of our profession by discussing points one through six of the Scout Law. In this final part, I will discuss the last six points and how they relate to our practices.

7. OBEDIENT
One must learn to discipline himself before he can lead or give orders to others. Obedience is a quality that shows self-control and strength of character. If everyone played by the rules and showed respect for authority, it would be a better world in which to live. When George Washington’s mother was asked how she had raised such a great leader, she replied that she taught him to obey. Great people learn how to take orders before they start giving them.

8. CHEERFUL
We all know the patient who is all smiles as long as he gets what he wants, but can ruin our day if he does not. Then there is his counterpart, who never seems upset no matter how late we are running or how many X-ray or impression retakes are required. We know which of those people we prefer dealing with and who we will go out of our way to please and make comfortable. Cheerful wins out every time, and as the team leader in our office we should be the first to show it and instill this quality in each and every one of our staff.

9. THRIFTY
Real thrift is not just about saving money. It is more about saving with a purpose and spending wisely the money we do save. This is truer now than ever in today’s economy and will be a major consideration for the upcoming generation of dentists facing incredible tuition debt and start-up costs.

Thrift actually consists of four things: earning, saving, spending wisely and sharing. It takes hard work to earn money, but when you work for it you appreciate it so much more. Saving towards one’s education or a future ambition is saving with a purpose, and once we reach that comfortable plateau — out of debt and with some expendable income — we must remember to share what we have with those less fortunate.

Notice all the emphasis today on “going green”? We are actually being asked to be thrifty with our environment, not wantonly destroying property or wasting food or water or other resources. Again, it is the next generation that will suffer the most if we do not take this thrifty approach.

10. BRAVE
We have all faced difficult situations or decisions in life that require bravery. Standing up for what is right and proper requires courage at home and in the office. Disciplining our sons and daughters is certainly not easy, nor is turning away the patient who wants us to bend the rules beyond what is legal and moral. Imagine the pressure of being a “whistle blower” or reporting fraud or turning over a colleague to get help with an addiction problem. Bravery is more than saving a child from a burning building. It manifests itself in so many ways throughout our lives.

11. CLEAN
Cleanliness should be an easy one in our profession, being that we must follow the guidelines of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and the Occupational Safety and Health Administration, but it is more than that. Are we clean and presentable in the image we portray to others, in our wardrobe and speech and habits? How sportsmanlike are we, and are we good losers when we don’t get our way? Are we clean players in life? We are fortunate in our role in society to be an example to so many; we should take advantage of this opportunity.

12. REVERENT
We have heard all our lives that cleanliness is next to Godliness, which brings me to our final point. Whether we practice a particular faith or not, or whether we even believe in a supreme being, we should always respect the convictions of others in matters of custom and religion. It is, or certainly should be, a very important aspect of the “Dental Law.”

So are we prepared? Have we done our good turn today?

Grow your practice using social media

If you aren’t online, do patients know you exist?

When I was young, a visit to my grandparents’ home on Chicago’s northwest side was sure to end the same way every time. Dad would announce that it was time for us to leave, and Grandma would instruct Grandpa, “Louis, get Paul’s mail.”

Grandpa would return a few moments later with a plastic bag. Its few contents never varied: thin pieces of junk mail addressed to my dad (though he had moved away from that address decades earlier) and my grandparents’ famed “clippings.”

These were items they had found during their daily examinations of the newspaper that they thought Dad and I would enjoy. One of our names would be written in the margin in Grandma’s shaky wax pencil handwriting, and Grandpa had carefully cut around the article — or comic strip, more likely, for me — with the straightest lines and squarest corners I had ever seen.
That was how it was done back in the day: oddly shaped scraps of newsprint passed in plastic bags from parent to child. If the article was especially good, Grandpa might have taken it to the library to make a photocopy for his buddy across the alley. That was their version of information going viral.

Today, those plastic bags and file folders have been replaced by Twitter feeds and Facebook pages. Instead of photocopies and straight-edged razors, we copy and paste links to share with “friends” the articles that we find interesting — ones we hope they’ll find interesting, too.

BEST PRACTICE

That’s one of the ways that Glenview-based Colonial Dental Group Ltd. is filling its Facebook page. Links to articles about how stress affects your teeth and the “Top 10 Reasons to Smile” are mixed with notices about reduced holiday hours and a reminder to plan ahead if you want to whiten your smile before wedding and graduation season.

Hygiene coordinator Linda Fahey has taken the lead on posting to Facebook, and admitted that the first year has been a learning experience.

“The biggest thing is just the time it takes in addition to normal, daily tasks,” she said. “It’s very costly to have a consultant do the posting, but still you want people who are savvy to work with it. We need to post enough to spark interest, and we all need to be telling patients about our Facebook connection so they seek us out and ‘like’ our page.”

Ms. Fahey’s willingness to get online will benefit the practice’s business, according to Northwestern University professor Randy Hlavac.

Social media like Facebook, Twitter, LinkedIn and blogging are heavy-hitting, low-cost marketing tools that small businesses can and should easily incorporate into their marketing programs.

“This is where it’s at,” said Mr. Hlavac, whose full title is lecturer professor of integrated marketing at Northwestern University’s Medill School of Journalism, Media and Integrated Marketing Communications. He also runs a web marketing firm based in Naperville.

“An increasing number of people are being social and not responding to other efforts. They shop based on recommendations more than any other kind of advertising. So if you’re not social, many people don’t know your business is out there.”

Social media can be fun, too, and doesn’t take much time to be used effectively. The goal is simple: to be engaged in the social media channels people turn to when they are ready to choose a dentist.

“This is the way it will be in the future, too, so you need to adapt to it,” Mr. Hlavac said.

Social media can be fun, too, and doesn’t take much time to be used effectively. The goal is simple: to be engaged in the social media channels people turn to when they are ready to choose a dentist.

“An increasing number of people are being social and not responding to other efforts. They shop based on recommendations more than any other kind of advertising. So if you’re not social, many people don’t know your business is out there.”

As an example, Mr. Hlavac pointed to mothers’ groups. Maybe they are talking about when to make their child’s first dental appointment, or how to handle a specific dental problem that one child is having. Or, maybe they are talking about avoiding injuries during the upcoming athletic season. These are all opportunities to talk about good oral health habits.

“It’s not that hard. People just want someone to relate to,” Mr. Hlavac said. “Be there when they’re ready to make a decision. They might remember an article they read because you posted a link to it, and they’ll seek out where your office is. They trust you because you provided the information they were looking for, so you’ve already helped them; you’re already on their plus list, and that’s valuable.

“In a very complex world, people appreciate your help sorting through it.”

It’s as simple as finding an article that you like and promoting it. Copy the link from your web browser and post it to your Facebook page or Twitter account so that others might click on the link and read it, too. You might even post your own note about why you liked it. It can be as short as “Here’s some good advice for new parents.”

“Suddenly, you become the trusted expert because you’ve filtered the information that people are looking for,” Mr. Hlavac said. “If you’re lucky, they’ll re-Tweet it, too, and you’ll get a few followers.”

EASIER THAN IT SOUNDS

Think about the direct mail you’ve received for the last several years: small businesses have long purchased mailing lists of the communities they want to penetrate. Maybe it’s homeowners in a certain zip code, or licensed dentists in Illinois.

Today, small business owners are looking online for communities they want to penetrate.

People form social communities to satisfy their passions or their short-term needs, Mr. Hlavac said. They might be new moms, 16-inch softball enthusiasts or alumni groups, but they are all groups of people with shared interests.

“What they seek are trusted experts,” Mr. Hlavac explained. “As you monitor their community, you’ll find out what they want to know. Think about how you can distill the information that they want.”

“You can’t force these communities to happen, but you want to be a part of the conversation and the group. You just need to be out there.”

_May/June 2012 CDS Review_
This is also a great way for the whole office staff to participate in the marketing efforts. Ask them to share links to articles they’ve read and that they think their patients will enjoy, too.

And as your team dials up its social media efforts, it may help to define your strategy, Mr. Hlavac said. "Have a purpose. Have a plan of attack. Know who you are trying to talk to.”

Far different from the formal business plan you might have crafted to secure a business loan, your social media strategy is something to discuss at a staff meeting. As a group, identify a segment of your patient base that you want to grow — maybe local working professionals to take advantage of your early morning and evening appointment times — and discuss messages you want them to receive: expanded hours, whitening options before wedding season, the importance of regular hygiene appointments.

FOLLOW THE PROS
The challenge will always be to keep up with the trends: anticipate your patients' questions before they come up. There are several ways to monitor online discussions without hiring a new staff member to troll the Internet.

The self-formed social media communities are always talking, Mr. Hlavac said. “They can be monitored easily and for free.”

He likes socialmention.com. Enter a term like “taking my child to the dentist,” and watch the site pull up and analyze social media mentions of your search term. This is especially interesting if you search for the name of your practice or the dentist. Mr. Hlavac recommended that staff search for certain terms weekly; if the analysis turns increasingly negative quickly, have them investigate why.

“You’ll see the topics that you need to be addressing,” Mr. Hlavac said. “You’ll find items that you can re-Tweet or link to, and the more information that you put out, the more your followers will respond — and the more they’ll see you as an expert.

“Everything can be monitored, which makes it fun,” he added.

If you find the same article being linked to repeatedly by sources you trust, consider blogging your response to it on your practice’s website. But don’t be intimidated by a blank sheet of paper; your response should be short and direct.

“Give it a great title, write no more than four paragraphs, have some great tips for readers to digest quickly, and then ask for a response,” Mr. Hlavac said. “If you make a really great point, people will re-Tweet it and you’ll get the most precious thing of all: it will go viral.”

Free social media tools

In addition to Mr. Hlavac’s recommended use of socialmention.com to monitor trends online. Here are a few free tools to aid in your social media efforts:

KLOUT.COM
Register for free with your social media accounts (Facebook, Twitter, Google+, LinkedIn and the like) and receive a score for your circle of influence. The more you post, the greater your score. Setting goals to raise your score makes your social media strategy a fun game, Mr. Hlavac recommended, and use Klout.com to track yourself, your competitors and other people who influence you.

KRED.COM
This free website will measure your social influence among communities by looking at both your Twitter and Facebook accounts. They base their metrics on re-Tweets, @Replies, Mentions, Likes and Comments, and give you a score out of 1,000 points.

ALLTOP.COM
This free site allows users to search for topics like “dentistry” and receive a page of the most recent articles at the hottest sites at that moment. Each year, February is recognized across the country as National Children’s Dental Health Month to raise awareness of the importance of oral health. And for more than 10 years, the Chicago Dental Society has celebrated the month of February by making supplies available at no cost to CDS members and to schools in Cook, Lake and DuPage counties.

Member dentists reached out in their communities and at local schools, giving presentations and teaching children the importance of keeping their teeth healthy and clean. Many of the schools that received supplies incorporated oral health into their lesson plans.

Recently, CDS received a box of 70 handwritten thank you cards from children who received supplies at the 10 Chicago public schools that partner with Children’s Home and Aid, a local social service agency that serves children and families.

“Your recent donation of dental products to all of our schools was inspiring. Students really enjoyed getting their own personal toothbrush and toothpaste to take home and learned a lot about dental hygiene in their after-school programs from their school nurses,” wrote Pauline Barlow, Director of Community Schools and Prevention in a thank you letter accompanying the others. “While their notes of gratitude are simple, they are heartfelt and sincere.”

CDS also supported Give Kids a Smile Day at the University of Illinois at Chicago College of Dentistry Feb. 28. Children from St. Malachy School came to UIC’s dental clinic for cleanings. Cook County Board President Toni Preckwinkle spoke at a press conference on the importance of oral health; CDS President John Gerding also spoke at the press conference and thanked everyone for their dedication, support and hard work to improving oral health for all in Illinois.

The Chicago Dental Society Foundation was also busy with February events. CDS Foundation Executive Director Rodney Watt and Foundation Board member Mary Starsiak visited Sherwood Elementary School on Chicago’s south side Feb. 28. Dr. Starsiak spoke with second grade students about the importance of good oral health.

“[The kids were great and very knowledgeable about dental health,]” said Dr. Starsiak. “Most of them had just lost their front teeth and were getting them in. Their main question was when do they need to get braces.”

The CDS Foundation delivered 400 toothbrushes and tubes of toothpaste for every student in the school.

During February, the CDS Foundation raised nearly $10,000 through online donations to get needed dental supplies and education to school-age children in the Chicago area. They are currently establishing an ongoing partnership with Chicago Public Schools to reach children in low-income communities and are scheduling visits to two other schools this year.

Patient communication goes beyond flossing

Online columnist Stephanie Sisk examined two ways in which oral health professionals communicate outside of the usual hygiene reminders — and several friends of the Chicago Dental Society joined the conversation with their comments. We want to hear from you, too. Look for new columns from Ms. Sisk and others online monthly at http://on.cds.org/columnists, and post your responses at the end. Or leave your comments on our Facebook page, www.facebook.com/ChicagoDentalSociety.

Getting personal

When I go in for my checkups and cleanings, I always count on a pleasant conversation with my hygienist about kids, school and vacations. You know, pleasant but innocuous topics that are cheery and amicable. Then we go over the checklist: floss more, try this rinse, next appointment. Done.

I never really thought it could be much different, but I recently heard the views of hygienists who consider that chairside time — that’s a matter of getting personal. When I go in for my checkups and cleanings, I always count on a pleasant conversation with my hygienist about kids, school and vacations. You know, pleasant but innocuous topics that are cheery and amicable.

With help from Trisha O’Hehir, editorial director for the magazine Hygienetown and its online counterpart, a group of hygienists weighed in on what they talk about with patients — and why. Though several said they stick with pretty safe subjects, others spoke of their roles as “sounding boards” for patients who are perhaps working through issues — physical and otherwise — that could affect their overall health.

Users of this forum agreed that some of the subjects discussed in their offices could get fairly personal. These hygienists believed they were not only building a stronger patient relationship, but also playing a vital part in helping a patient navigate confusing or trying times, if only by lending an empathetic ear.

One hygienist posting on the Hygienetown message board said that once she covered the oral health script, she opened the floor to the patient. “My operatory was like them coming to see a psychologist. If it was on their mind and they wanted to discuss it, we talked about it,” adding that the interaction is why she entered the profession in the first place.

“A huge patient satisfier is making a personal connection,” wrote one of the hygienists. “It is what makes them feel that you are treating them as a human being, care about them as a person, and understand a little about who they are. It also breeds loyalty and trust.”

Just a minute, I need to take this call

We’ve all had that annoying experience where someone is talking on their cell phone: at the next table at the restaurant, in line at the grocery store or bank, on the train. Sadly, the doctor’s office is not immune either.

In the early days of cell phones, it seemed common sense and courtesy guided cell phone use, with calls handled discreetly and largely out of earshot. Today, many callers exhibit little self-discipline at all, believing that any and all of their calls are important to take no matter the time or place. Doctors can — and should — set some rules for personal phone use in their office.

A New York Times article recounted the experience of an optometrist in Munster, IN, who had patients taking calls while he was treating them. Some were actual emergencies, but Neil Gailmard remembers one patient who had to pause during the exam to take a call to set up dinner plans for the evening.

“You’re stuck in an awkward situation,” he was quoted. But when patients talked too long, he would offer to leave the room. “I find that gets them to hang up,” he said. “They don’t want you to leave.”

Rhonda Savage, a dentist and now CEO of a consulting firm, describes cell phone abuse in the office as a growing and serious matter, especially among younger patients and staff.

“No cell phones” signs seem to be a common way to alert patients to expectations, but some of the signs on the market are terse or unattractive. Still, patients can be oblivious to signs, said Dr. Savage, who stresses the front desk staff must intervene to keep the waiting room free of inconsiderate callers.

The doctor also must lead by setting a clear policy for staff. While written or verbal policies are useful, Dr. Savage said leadership, clear expectations and enforcement are the best tools to corral cellphone use in the office.

READER RESPONSE:

• Sonya Elizabeth: I love getting my patients to feel calm and happy to be in our office. That’s a great way to make everyone’s day at their hygiene appointment. I feel lucky to say that I can remember every patient I see and their story about how they feel being in our office. It’s pleasant. It’s a feeling of being there for them and along the way my patients trust my advocacy in preventative oral health.

• David Juel: ah. Let them talk, avoid the confrontation. Better to let the patient feel important than you.

When do you need an informed consent form?

The law requires dentists to do proper informed consent when performing procedures.

Informed consent is a verbal process in which a diagnosis is made; the planned procedure is described; and the risks, alternatives and benefits are explained.

While not mandated, the dentist should be the one providing this information, rather than a dental team member, as the dentist is in a better position to answer any questions from the patient. In order to document the “consent conversation,” dentists may have the patient sign a written consent form that should mirror the discussion.

There has been much discussion (and confusion) in the dental community as to whether a patient must sign a written consent form before high-risk procedures such as third molar removal or dental implant surgery. However, the law does not mandate a signed consent, as it is the verbal process that is required.

Nevertheless, I highly recommend to my clients that consent forms be used for those procedures that carry with them a risk for “significant” post-operative complications.

GET IT IN WRITING

So when do you really need written consent from patients?

The answer is not black and white, but many shades of gray. While it may be advisable to inform a patient of the possibility of tooth sensitivity or a root canal following the placement of a moderate-sized restoration on Tooth 3, many would maintain that enumerating such risks is not required for these “low risk” and straightforward procedures.

On the other hand, few would disagree that one must discuss the numerous risks of dental implant surgery in the Tooth 19 area and that documenting the discussion in a written consent is prudent. Moreover, the dental record should also document the informed consent discussion. Short-handed abbreviations such as “R/B/A” (that stands for risks, benefits and alternatives discussed) may be sufficient to document the consent discussion.

While written consent is not recommended for a prophylaxis, it is for dental implant surgery. The gray area for obtaining a signed consent comes into play for all those procedures in-between. For example, endodontists routinely use consent forms for root canal procedures, yet most general dentists do not. One may argue that both are right as long as the discussion with the patient is documented in the record. Keep in mind that there are many advantages to having a patient sign a consent form. It reinforces in a written format what the dentist has told the patient. Further, written consents play a vital role in the defense of malpractice suits. However, understand that obtaining a patient’s informed consent, or even having it documented in a signed consent form, does not provide a “free pass” to commit malpractice.

For instance, when a patient consents to an extraction of Tooth 1 that ends up leading to an oro-antral opening, a dentist must still employ the proper surgical techniques and appropriately respond to the post-operative complication.

Consent forms should also be tailored for each specific patient and procedure. For example, if the panoramic X-ray shows the roots of Tooth 14 closely approximated with the maxillary sinus, the dentist has an obligation to discuss in more detail the particular risk of a sinus opening and to perhaps emphasize that risk on the consent form.

BE CONSISTENT

Many practitioners supplement the consent discussion with patient information pamphlets that spell out the risks, benefits and alternatives of a particular procedure. Make sure that these pamphlets are consistent with what you tell your patients and what is contained in your written consent form.

Occasionally, pamphlets on dental implants, for instance, either minimize or are silent as to the risk of nerve injury or post-operative infection. Along those same lines, it is advisable that patients who are to undergo elective dental procedures — such as orthodontic treatment or complex cosmetic procedures — be given the written consent form on a date prior to the initiation of the treatment so as to give the patient adequate time to read and contemplate the risks involved. Often, during a deposition in a malpractice case, the patient will testify that he or she was given the consent form just before the dentist administered local anesthetic and felt coerced into signing it. Therefore, giving the patient the consent form beforehand will minimize such argument should the case end in a lawsuit.

In addition, dentists should routinely review their consent forms to make sure they contain layman’s language (for instance, use “numbness,” not “paresthesia”) and adequately describe the risks associated with the specific procedure that the patient is agreeing to undergo. Also avoid using phrases such as “a small percentage of patients (1 to 2 percent) suffer numbness from a lower tooth extraction,” as such language can be inaccurate or misleading.

If you use written consent forms for a particular procedure, be sure that all patients who undergo that procedure sign a consent form. For example, if a case ends up in litigation, a dentist will be viewed negatively if he testifies that he typically has patients sign a consent form for root canals, but did not have Mrs. Jones (the plaintiff) sign one for her root canal on Tooth 31.

WILL WRITTEN CONSENT KEEP ME OUT OF HOT WATER?

Finally, the argument that a consent form is “useless” in a legal case is simply not valid.

Consent forms are vitally important in defending a dentist or dental specialist at time of trial because it shows that the patient was provided with the necessary information to make a reasoned decision before undergoing a particular procedure. Additionally, a signed consent shows that the dentist was thorough and upfront with the patient about possible complications from the procedure.

Obtaining the patient’s informed consent, documenting it on the record and, for certain procedures, taking the further step of obtaining a signed consent form, are not only necessary for providing proper care, but also serve as important elements in a dentist’s defense should a lawsuit be filed.

Let’s roll up our sleeves and get to work

The Midwinter Meeting was a busy time for the Chicago Dental Society Foundation, with much to celebrate.

To recap:

• We honored the first Vision Award recipient at the Opening Session, the late Michael J. Stablein, DDS. He was an ardent advocate for access to care, and we are inspired by his legacy.
• This was the first year that the Friday Night Event was co-hosted by CDS and the CDS Foundation, and it was a sell-out success. More than 600 guests partied at the Park West with Bee Gees tribute band Stayin’ Alive. We raised more than $20,000, with 100 percent of the proceeds benefitting access to care. We thank our corporate and individual sponsors, including the Chicago Dental Society, Bosworth Company, Benco, Henry Schein and Hayes Handpiece Chicago. As plans are already under way for the 2013 Friday Night Event, please become a sponsor now by contacting our Executive Director, Rodney Watt at 312.836.7301 or rwatt@cdsfound.org.

We are currently looking for space in DuPage County to house our three-chair clinic, and hope to open the doors by the end of the summer.

We thank all of you for supporting one of the CDS Foundation’s new initiatives, our Give a Child a Toothbrush campaign. We’re working with the Chicago Public Schools to put volunteer dentists in classrooms, along with oral health supplies and education on how and why to use them. We visited Sherwood Elementary School in February to distribute more than 400 toothbrushes and tubes of toothpaste (see story and photos, page 12). We talked a lot about this program at the Midwinter Meeting, and received nearly $10,000 in donations to support this ongoing program. Look on our website, www.cdsfound.org, for more information about supporting this effort as a donor or volunteer educator.

The most exciting part of the weekend, however, was the announcement that the CDS Foundation plans to open a dental clinic in DuPage County by working with volunteers from the recently closed dental program at the DuPage Community Clinic. The clinic served the uninsured working poor, whose meager earnings often force a choice between food and lodging or dental care. We are currently looking for space in DuPage County to house our three-chair clinic, and hope to open the doors by the end of the summer.

The CDS Foundation continues to support clinics, dental schools and other nonprofit organizations that provide dental care to the underserved, including children, the disabled, the homeless and the working poor. Together, we can make a difference with access to dental care and dental education programs.

Get involved! Make your contribution today and join us in opening a dental clinic in the DuPage community. Visit our website at www.cdsfound.org or contact our Executive Director, Rodney Watt, and learn how you can help.

CommunityHealth clinics look to expand services following grant from Cook County

by Joanna Brown

Bike to the office. Meet up with an assistant who is ready to work, too. Do your best dentistry. Chart your treatment. And peddle home again. Sounds like a dream.

In fact, it’s Reshma Dhake’s passion: the four hours she spends each month as a volunteer dentist and dental director in CommunityHealth’s West Town dental clinic feeds her soul.

“You really feel gratitude from each patient. They appreciate that it’s free care and that you’re donating your time, and they express their thanks in various ways.’

“I’m a practice owner, but I think really since I graduated my heart has been in public health,” said Dr. Dhake, a 2004 graduate of the University of Illinois at Chicago College of Dentistry.

“When I was a student at UIC (where they have a dental clinic for uninsured patients), you can really see the need for better access to care every day.”

Founded in 1993, CommunityHealth is the largest volunteer-based health center in Illinois. It provides primary care and 25 specialty and diagnostic services by appointment at no cost to low-income, uninsured patients. A grant enabled CommunityHealth to add dental care to its menu of services in 2010. Of every $1 they receive, 96 cents goes toward patient care.

With clinics in the West Town and Englewood neighborhoods, CommunityHealth reported 27,000 medical/dental visits in 2011, which provided services for nearly 9,000 uninsured individuals — all delivered by volunteer healthcare professionals. Dentists provide Phase I general dentistry for qualified patients; they are adults who do not have insurance, nor do they qualify for Medicaid.

And since CommunityHealth received $1 million from the Cook County Board in 2011 to provide outpatient dental care for patients of the Cook County Health and Hospital System and plans to expand services, volunteer recruitment has become a top priority.

Dr. Dhake answered a similar call from CommunityHealth for help two years ago. She said their partnership worked for several reasons — not the least of which is that she lives close enough to the West Town clinic to bike there.

“You could set your own schedule for as little as four hours a month, and that was appealing,” she recalled. “I could basically show up and do dentistry, I’d have an assistant, and after I charted my clinic notes I wouldn’t have to worry about anything other than doing great work.”

Now also the dental director, Dr. Dhake has some administrative responsibilities — but not enough to lessen her enjoyment of providing great dentistry.

“You really feel gratitude from each patient,” she said. “They appreciate that it’s free care and that you’re donating your time, and they express their thanks in various ways.”

Because patients are seen by appointment only, and it is up to the volunteer dentist to let the clinic manager know how the schedule will go, the dentist determines how many patients will be scheduled during his or her shift.

Dr. Dhake usually sees five or six patients in the two-chair clinic, for services that range from X-rays to extractions. She sees many patients multiple times and develops relationships with them because of the appointment-only scheduling.

“Another great reason to volunteer is that you can pick your schedule. The clinic can accommodate almost any hours you have available; even if it’s four hours a month, you’re able to help the access to care issue directly.

“The biggest resource we have is time,” she continued. “We can give time and skills to directly address the puzzle that’s before our profession.”

Ms. Brown is the CDS senior writer.
ISDS seeks candidates for member award

The Illinois State Dental Society (ISDS) is currently accepting nominations for its Distinguished Member Award, to be presented at the Annual Session. This award recognizes a member in good standing for significant service to mankind.

The award is made on the basis of achievement in the following areas: civic, cultural, religious, humanitarian, academic and/or professional. The honoree’s outstanding contributions enhance the image of organized dentistry.

The deadline for submission is June 1. The nomination form can be found on the ISDS website www.isds.org under Member Center/Membership/Recognition. Questions about the nomination process can be directed to ISDS’s Lisa Fowler at 800.475.4737 or lfowler@isds.org.

William Evans joins faculty at UIC

T. William Evans, who limits his practice to facial esthetic surgery, has joined the Department of Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery at the University of Illinois at Chicago (UIC) College of Dentistry.

In addition to his role at UIC, Dr. Evans is on the faculty of The Ohio State University and the University of Michigan.

Dr. Evans said that his goal is to help establish the residency program as one of the best in the country. His focus will be on facial esthetic surgery, which includes endoscopic brow lifts, deeper plane facelifts, neck lifts, rhinoplasties, facial implants and skin procedures. He will also lecture to the residents in the oral and maxillofacial surgery program.

Dr. Evans has published many scientific articles about facial surgery, and has also written for many textbooks.

ADA/Kellogg Executive Management Program enrollment open through July 1

Dentists interested in complementing their clinical training and experience with enhanced management skills can register for the 2012 session of the American Dental Association (ADA) and Northwestern University Kellogg School of Management’s ADA/Kellogg Executive Management Program.

Now in its eighth year, the executive-level program consists of a specially designed curriculum for dentists to learn more about business management from one of the nation’s top-ranked management schools.

“The ADA/Kellogg Executive Management Program provides dentists with a curriculum that is both intellectually demanding and, at the same time, very stimulating,” said ADA President William Calnon. “It expands their business and management expertise, and enhances their ability to manage more effectively in a dynamic environment.”

Based on the core curriculum of matriculating Kellogg MBA students, the program addresses business strategy, organizational leadership, marketing, finance, accounting, economics, quantitative methods and information systems.

Held at Northwestern University’s Chicago campus, the 18-day executive management program consists of three sessions. The 2012 sessions are set for Sept. 19-24, Nov. 1-6, and Nov. 29-Dec. 4. Kellogg professors teach all courses.

Registration fees are $13,000 for ADA members. Fee includes tuition, course materials and most meals. Tuition does not include travel and lodging.

Application materials and program details are available online at www.ada.org/goto/kellogg or by contacting Connie Paslaski, 312.440.3541 or paslaskic@ada.org. Registration is accepted on a first-come, first-served basis. The registration deadline is July 1.

UIC student elected ASDA vice president

University of Illinois at Chicago College of Dentistry D-4 student Ben Youel was elected vice president of the American Student Dental Association (ASDA), a national post he will hold through March 2013.

Mr. Youel is one of two ASDA vice presidents who, along with the president and ASDA Executive Director Nancy Honeycutt, comprise the ASDA Executive Committee.

The Executive Committee “runs the association day to day,” Mr. Youel explained. “We appoint delegates to represent ASDA to the American Dental Association Annual Session, and the three of us split up other national meetings throughout the year. So we’re the three people most qualified to speak for American dental students.”

The issues that this year’s Executive Committee plans to tackle are dental student debt, member advocacy and leadership development.
UIC professor earns ACP innovator award

Cortino Sokotjo, an assistant professor in UIC’s Department of Restorative Dentistry, was awarded the American College of Prosthodontics/ACP Education Foundation Young Investigator Innovator Award for 2011-12.

The goal of the $25,000 award is to advance understanding of prosthodontic-related biological and/or materials systems, human behavior, cost and care of delivery, economic modeling, and quality of life investigations. The scope of the program extends to any area of science that contributes to the understanding of prosthodontic tooth replacement therapies.

“It is a very competitive process that supports research for the most promising of young prosthodontic faculty,” explained Stephen Campbell, head of Restorative Dentistry.

Dr. Sokotjo’s research proposal is entitled “In-Vivo Study of Novel Superhydrophilic Implant Surfaces.”

Glenn DeWeirdt has always been “a car guy.” And for years he wanted to get involved in racing on some level. A year ago, Dr. DeWeirdt finally gave himself the chance.

Dr. DeWeirdt, a 1984 graduate of the Northwestern University Dental School, was professionally trained to participate in amateur motor sports race events. He equipped his Porsche Boxter for both street and track use by using different brakes and tires that are street legal but a bit stickier for the race track.

The first step was to take an accredited course, a three-day class at the nationally recognized Skip Barber Racing School. This enabled Dr. DeWeirdt to get a Sports Car Club of America license and gave him the basic skills needed to go on a track to race competitively.

“They teach you the principles that you need to be able to maximize the performance of your car and do it safely in the presence of other cars on the track,” said Dr. DeWeirdt, a general dentist in Woodridge.

“[Fixing up the car] is something that I do myself. I actually have a little shop set up in my garage with a lift and tools. It’s kind of fun,” he continued. “So I do my own brakes, oil changes — what we would consider minor types of things.”

Along with his Porsche, Dr. DeWeirdt has been doing Spec Miata racing with Mazdas supplied by Skip Barber’s school. And he’ll be taking an advanced class in July at Road America in Wisconsin to learn about Race Prepared Mazda Miatas.

But on Sundays, he goes to a karting with his 18-year-old son, John.

“They aren’t go-karts,” said Dr. DeWeirdt. “They look like them, but they are very fast. On half-mile long track we hit speeds of almost 60 mph.”

Going 60 mph on a track, though, doesn’t come without the possibility of injuries. Karts in general are pretty safe; because they are so low to the ground there isn’t a possibility of it turning over, just of them spinning.

“The worst thing that ever happened to me is that I spun into the infield and my side hit the side of the seat. That was when I ended up with bruised ribs and why I now wear rib protectors,” said Dr. DeWeirdt.

However, spinning out in a racecar is a bit more dangerous. Dr. DeWeirdt’s most memorable moment thus far has been driving on the Road America course at almost 100 mph on a wet day. On the course, one of its more famous turns is on the
‘The worst thing that ever happened to me is that I spun into the infield and my side hit the side of the seat. That was when I ended up with bruised ribs and why I now wear rib protectors.’

backside known as “the Kink.”

“The car got loose and it started to slide,” said Dr. DeWeirdt. “The problem with the Kink is that it’s a very high-speed turn that you’re taking flat out. I didn’t crash, but I did lose control and was able to regain it. That was very memorable.”

Looking down the road, Dr. DeWeirdt has some more racing adventures that he would like to try. While Road America is one of the first grand-prix race courses in the United States, Watkins Glen in New York was the first.

“Watkins Glen or Mid-Ohio would be the courses that I would really love to run,” said Dr. DeWeirdt. But his next step will be to get set up with a dedicated racecar by building one or buying one.

“That’s going to take some doing to with my wife, though,” joked Dr. DeWeirdt.

Where you’ll smile more.

Most of us get into the dentistry field because we genuinely want to help people maintain a healthy smile and experience the confidence that smile brings. But when you’re running your own practice, keeping up with the day-to-day business tasks can make those rewarding moments seem fewer and far between. Fortunately, when you join Dental Associates, you can truly put your focus back on your patients.

From a small, solo practice that launched more than thirty-five years ago, Dental Associates has grown to ten multi-specialty dental centers. We’re proud to bring quality, progressive treatment to communities across Wisconsin.

In addition to general dentistry, each Dental Associates center provides the following dental services:

- Urgent Care
- Pediatric Dentistry
- Oral Surgery
- Orthodontics
- Endodontics
- Periodontics
- Prosthodontics
- Cosmetic Dentistry

smile more.
It’s never too early to develop good habits

As a child, it is important to take care of your teeth. As you lose your baby teeth, your adult teeth come in, teeth you’ll have for the rest of your life. There are a few things you can do to keep your teeth healthy, strong and well-protected.

KEEP ’EM CLEAN
The American Dental Association recommends a few ways to keep your teeth healthy and clean.

- Brush your teeth twice a day with fluoride toothpaste. And replace your toothbrush every three to four months, because a toothbrush with bad bristles won’t do a good job of cleaning your teeth.
- Make sure to floss your teeth each day to remove food particles from between your teeth.
- Eat a healthy, balanced diet and limit your snacks between meals.
- Make sure to visit your dentist regularly for a check-up and cleaning.

GETTING BRACES
Sometimes our teeth don’t come in as straight as we would like them to. The teeth may be too crowded or crooked and you end up with a bad bite. Braces create a nice looking smile, but more importantly, having straight teeth will make cleaning your mouth easier and keep you healthier. Crooked teeth can cause tooth decay, gum disease and sometimes tooth loss. And when you have a bad bite, it can interfere with chewing and speaking.

The dentist starts to notice whether you need braces between 6 and 12 years old. Most children start getting braces between 8 and 14 years old. Talk to your dentist about whether or not braces are for you.

PROTECTING YOUR TEETH
If you play a sport where you can injure your mouth, it’s important to wear a mouthguard to protect your teeth. Sports that are more apt to have dental injuries are football, hockey, basketball, baseball, gymnastics and volleyball.

Having a good mouthguard while playing sports can help prevent injury to your teeth, lips, tongue, face and jaw. You can purchase mouthguards at any sporting goods store, but having your dentist make a custom mouthguard just for you is the best way to protect your smile because it will be specially fit to your teeth.

It is especially important to wear a mouthguard when you have braces, as an elbow to the face can damage the soft tissue of the cheeks and lips, not to mention damage the braces themselves. If you have a retainer, ask your dentist about wearing it when you are active in sports.

What is going on at the oral surgery office of Midland Oral Surgery and Implant Centers, Ltd.? Bill Hajiharis and his wife, Tammy, are expecting their third child in May. Big brother and big sister are Harrison and Elianna. Bill says Tammy looks “fabulous!”

Aaron Tucke and his wife, Sharada, are expecting their third child in September. Big brother and big sister are Kavin and Aryana.

And yes, Ammar Adam and his wife, Juany, are expecting their second child in August. Big sister is Amina.

Can we expect another Pagni, Heaton or Kasper?

On the grandchild circuit: Don Doyle was expecting a grandchild in April, Declan Reilly. Don’s daughter Elizabeth is engaged to be married Oct. 20. Dennis Nowak’s daughter Dana has an 11-month-old, Olivia Lynn. Dennis’s older daughter, Alicia, is due May 23.

Bob Thomas’s daughter Hilary Wagner, author of Nightshade City and The White Assassin, is expecting to release her newest young adult novel, Goblin Shark Rising, in early 2013.

Kathy Bielik recently returned from a week in Haiti on a dental mission along with Tom Sarna and Gilbert Villasenor. They treated more than 100 patients and extracted more than 250 teeth. Kathy said she had to do an oral surgery refresher; I guess wire bending instruments don’t work well for extractions!

Hope everyone had a great St. Patrick’s Day and continues to enjoy our beautiful spring weather.

North Side
by Amy Van Fossen, DDS

Kirk Kollman and several other North Side Branch members attended an Alpha Omega Dental Ski Trip in Vail, CO. Along with skiing, they enjoyed four days of CE with Debra Isman, a practice management consultant from Houston.

The Dental Ski trip has been held at various resorts across the country for more than 20 years. It’s a great way to make friends from all over the country and participants look forward to seeing everyone the next year. There is always room for more people to join.

Cissy Furusho finished her first half-marathon in Disney World. She only just started training this past year and really enjoyed the challenge. Her husband, Greg, also finished the race.

Peter Cabrera was installed in February. as the president of the Midwest Society of Periodontology (MSP). The MSP represents 11 states in the region as well as two Canadian provinces. Peter has practiced periodontics and implant dentistry in the Lincoln Park area since 1981. He is the past president of the Illinois Society of Periodontists and has been on the affiliate staff of The Children’s Memorial Hospital for 27 years.

Drummer and branch president David Behm is now a member of Gasoline Alley, a blues/rock band out of Mundelein. He practices in a garage and covers music from the Grateful Dead and Eric Clapton, among others. They played a holiday concert at the Edward Hines Jr. VA Hospital in Maywood.

David and his wife, Donna, welcomed their second grandchild, Marley Marie, Dec. 15. The proud parents are their son, Chris, and his wife, Renae. Needless to say, it’s been a busy year for David.

Thanks for a great season as our president, David.

Jeff Arnold and his wife, Diane, announce with great pride the arrival of their second granddaughter, Marley Marie, March 1. Parents Jason and Stephanie and big sister Penelope are all doing well. The family lives in Richmond, VA, where Jason is a professor of political science at Virginia Commonwealth University, and Stephanie teaches high school English. Congratulations to the Arnold family!

Harvey Jay Mahler presented the lecture “Bright Ideas for General Practice” to the Dental Arts Club at Alpine Banquet Haus in Westchester in March. It was an updated version of his 2011 Midwinter Meeting lecture “Gems, Pearls and Diamonds for Dentists.” It went very well and the group was extremely friendly and gracious.

Our January branch meeting was a success and an extra special treat for Efi Andrianopoulos, who won the drawing from PNC Bank for a Keurig coffeemaker. When I spoke to Efi after her big win, she said she’s looking forward to brewing coffee at her Lincoln Avenue orthodontic office.

Trucia Drummond visited the polar bears in Churchill, Canada — adorable! Trucia reported at the March branch meeting that our branch’s membership in Dent-IL-PAC has risen to 31 percent.

Neal Nealis is enjoying being father of the bride. His daughter Lindsey was married in June and daughter Courtney was married in April.

Gene Romo was featured in the article “Diabetes and Dental Health in the Hispanic Community” in November for Hoy, Chicago’s bilingual newspaper.

In July, Gene hosted 22 dentists at his office to discuss trends in today’s dental profession.

Orthodontist Chester Handelman recently published the paper “Non-surgical Palatal Expansion” for a point-counterpoint article in the September 2011 issue of The American Journal of Orthodontics. As you might suspect, his position was on the non-surgical palatal expansion side (a topic on which he spoke to our branch earlier this year).

Paul Landman is a member of the American Academy of Cosmetic Dentistry Professional Education Committee planning future meetings in Washington DC, Seattle and Toronto. Paul recently returned from a mostly cloudy week in Puerto Vallarta.

Charles Shulruff’s 13-year-old daughter, Lily, just returned from a trip to Israel. This follows a school trip last year to China. What an exciting 8th grade year!

Barry Freydberg presented the lecture “Sleep Apnea, a Real Snore” to a full house at our March branch meeting. It was his lucky night; he was also the winner of PNC Bank’s Keurig coffeemaker drawing.

Alice Boghosian’s daughter, Lydia Gerlach, is graduating from Xavier University, earning a Bachelor of Arts degree in international relations and a Bachelor of Science degree in international business. Lydia also served as vice president of the student body while earning her double major. Congratulations!

Jamie Robinson and his wife, Carol, recently traveled to Hong Kong; Sydney, Australia; and then an 11-day cruise from Brisbane, Australia, to Fiji, where they watched their daughter perform nightly on the cruise ship Sun Princess.

Congratulations to David Behm and the rest of the board on a successful, fun and educational season. We hope to see all branch members at one of our next meetings.

NORTH SUBURBAN: James Fondriest presented a lecture in Malmö, Sweden.

Brent Agran recently purchased the practice of Alicia Rubinstein and Sheldon Grabiner in Chicago’s Edgewater/Andersonville neighborhood. The practice has been around for more than 40 years and Brent is very excited about the opportunity.

James Fondriest has been busy with another active lecture season, having presented at 24 venues over the past 12 months — mostly annual sessions for state dental societies, including California/Anaheim, Calgary, Texas, Nashville, Boston/Yankee, and even Malmo, Sweden. He must have racked up a lot of miles for a free vacation trip!

Paul Akers recently completed the cer-
Barbara Siargos and Matthew Israel of Willow Lake Orthodontics in Glenview are excited to announce the adoption of their baby girl, Ellie Marie, born Jan. 26.

Nikisha Jodhan and her husband, Eugene Tyurin, just became the proud parents of baby girl, Anya Natalie. She was born Jan. 26, weighing 6 pounds, 7 ounces. Big brother Nikolai, 3, is so happy he has company now!

Shawn Post sold his home of 20 years in Wilmette, and has relocated to the Gold Coast in Chicago — a mere nine blocks from his office at the intersection of Michigan Avenue and Wacker Drive.

Ira Shapira will present a second all-day lecture, “Sleep Apnea Diagnosis and Treatment for the Academy of General Dentistry,” in the fall in Rockford.

He is also presenting a two-day intensive sleep apnea course May 11-12 in the new offices of Delany Dental Care at 310 S. Greenleaf, in Gurnee, after 27 years on Delany Road.

Ira’s term on the Board of the Illinois Sleep Society is ending this spring. We wish him all the best!

Benjamin LoGiudice of Deerfield celebrated his 40th birthday in January. His wife, Maria, and daughters, Mia and Isabella, surprised him with a Caribbean cruise for the entire family. They visited the beautiful islands of St. Thomas, St. Maarten and the Bahamas.

Bud Mopper and his wife have been traveling throughout New Zealand and Australia. Bud was invited to lecture for the New Zealand Academy of Cosmetic Dentistry in Auckland. He also lectured in Melbourne and Sydney.

Mark Cannon of Associated Dental Specialists of Long Grove presented his research on probiotic therapy for preventive dentistry at the American Association of Dental Research (AADR) Annual Meeting in Tampa, FL. The advanced CPR course is now required every two years for those dentists who administer IV sedation.

Steven Arnstein told us about his post-graduate CDS member. The topic of his presentation was “Understanding the Interactions Between Bacterial Invasion and Mechanical Stress in Periodontal Tissues.” After his graduation from Marquette this May, Yaroslav plans to move back to the Chicago area.

Dorothy Anasinski presented “Discover the Art of Non-Surgical Periodontal Therapy” at the Midwinter Meeting.
Father, Samuel Arnstein, Loyola University School of Dentistry, Class of 1935. Samuel practiced until his retirement in 2005, and in April he celebrated his 100th birthday.

Samuel and his wife have been married for 73 years and both are still very active. We’re glad to hear it!

Maria (MaLu) Simon and fellow pediatric dentist Leila Younger joined the Rotary International Operation We Care Dental Mission in the Philippines in February. Their focus was on comprehensive and preventive pediatric dental care and parent education.

It was a good opportunity to also share information with local dentists about state-of-the-art prevention strategies. The mission team then went on to tour the Temples of Angkor Wat in Cambodia before returning to the States.

Pediatric Dentistry of Northbrook announced a new pediatric dental associate, Jessica Massie. The practice welcomed her this summer and she has been a great addition to the team.

Jessica is a graduate of Indiana University and the University of Michigan School of Dentistry. She completed her pediatric training and Master’s degree at the University of California, San Francisco. Look for her at CDS events and join us in welcoming her to Chicago!

George Warga was inducted into the American Academy of Restorative Dentistry at its annual meeting and reception held Feb. 25-26 at the Ritz Carlton Hotel in Chicago.

George has been in general private practice on Chicago’s North Shore since 1985 with an emphasis on prosthetics, implants, esthetics, TMJ and restorative dentistry. In addition to restorative dentistry, George provides sleep apnea appliances, Invisalign and cosmetic facial treatments.

George is a 1985 graduate of the University of Illinois at Chicago College of Dentistry. He maintains professional memberships in the American Academy of Fixed Prosthodontics, Academy of Pankey Scholars, Academy of General Dentistry, American Dental Association, Chicago Dental Society, Illinois State Dental Society and the American Academy of Facial Esthetics.

George also serves on the faculty at the Pankey Institute for post graduate and advanced dental education. You can find more information about him and his practice at www.wargadds.com.

Northwest Side

by Gordon Ziols, DDS

Greetings to all Northwest Side Branch members. We are heading toward summer and enjoyed the warm temperatures of an early spring. Many will soon be busy with graduations, weddings and enjoying Chicago’s best season. We look forward to another year, and our new branch president, Mike Biasiello, has a great program scheduled for the 2012-13 season.
Kim and Spencer Bloom are expecting their 11th grandchild this fall. Dad is currently stationed at Fort Campbell, KY.

Lou Imburgia and wife, Rosemary, spent time in Honolulu celebrating their 25th wedding anniversary. Lou said the weather was perfect and they had a great time.

Brett Gilbert and his wife, Kari, traveled to Dubai, UAE, in January. Brett was invited to lecture on endodontic treatment at the Dubai World Dental Meeting and the AEEDC Dental Congress. Brett presented two lectures and conducted a hands-on course during the visit.

MaryAnn and Jim Stipak spent time in Marco Island, FL, recently, visiting friends and enjoying the sunshine.

John Kaminski and his wife, Ann, traveled to Italy to celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary. The highlight of the trip was renewing their vows at St. Peter’s Basilica. Besides Rome, John and Ann traveled to Milan, Lake Como and Florence.

Sal Storniolo was inducted into the Odontographic Society of Chicago during a ceremony at Rosewood Restaurant in Rosemont.

Sal and his wife also watched sons Anthony and Frank perform in South Pacific, their South Middle School production. Frank has been acting since age 5 and has a great voice — which Sal says certainly did not come from his gene pool.

Sal also finished his four years as Cub Master for his three sons, and looks forward to his new role as assistant Scout master.

The Northwest Side Branch held its final dinner meeting of the season in April at Rosewood Restaurant. Mike Biasiello was installed as president. Sam Casio inducted the new officers.

Congratulations to all the new officers, and special thanks to outgoing president Ken Hauser for doing a great job.

Volunteer for Mom

Finally, this summer the Illinois State Dental Society and the Illinois State Dental Society Foundation will be working with Collaborative Underserved Relief and Education Network (CURE Network) to host the 2012 Mission of Mercy (MOM) event at the Lake County Fairgrounds in Grayslake June 8-9.

If you are available, this is a wonderful way to give back to the community.

Last year, several members of our branch volunteered for the CURE health clinic at Malcolm X College. It was a well organized and rewarding experience.

Northwest Suburban

Happy Spring! I hope everyone has been enjoying our beautiful, early start to warmer temperatures. Our branch members have certainly been busy over the winter months.

In November, Buffalo Grove orthodontist Yan Razdolsky sold his Grayslake practice to Michael Stosich. Yan will continue to work from his Buffalo Grove office.

“The sale of this practice creates a win-win for everyone involved,” Yan said. He has been an orthodontist since 1987. In Buffalo Grove, patients will enjoy added appointment scheduling flexibility, as his office will offer early and late office hours Monday through Friday throughout the month, now that he no longer divides his time between two practices.

The Razdolsky family also enjoyed some time off during the holidays by visiting Costa Rica.

Mike Durbin, Vince Arpino, Ara Goshgarian, Lee Graber, Spencer Pope, Carlotta Evans and Esperanza Garcia attended the American Association of Orthodontists Political Advocacy Conference in Washington, DC. They report the conference was very informative and they had an opportunity to meet with the staffs of several of our Illinois members of Congress.

Schaumburg endodontist Jerry Pisano received the Edgar D. Coolidge Award — the highest award granted by the American Association of Endodontists — at its annual session in Boston this past April.

The award is given to one endodontist on a national level “who has displayed leadership and exemplary dedication to dentistry and endodontics.” Jerry’s entire family — including five grandchildren — attended the event.

Congratulations on your achievement, Jerry!

Angela Willox traveled to Guatemala in January to provide dental care to children in the rural mountainous region of Jalapa.
in the rural, mountainous region of Jalapa. More than 500 patients were treated over four days, and the team was able to provide more than 200 restorations, 700 extractions and 215 cleanings.

For most of these children, it was the first time they had ever seen a dentist, and many were living with chronic dental pain and abscessed teeth.

A few days of well-deserved rest were then enjoyed in the beautiful, historic town of Antigua.

A special shout out to new branch members Elliott Levy (practicing in Des Plaines) and Aldina Lee (practicing in Lake in the Hills). They were married in October and now reside in Arlington Heights.

As always, please feel free to submit your branch news to me by email at smilesforkids@comcast.net or phone at 847.670.9020.

South Suburban
by Michael Hoffman, DDS

While everyone in Chicago was enjoying record warmth in March, the nine skiers on the annual South Suburban Branch Ski Trip enjoyed 32 inches of fresh powder that fell during their visit to Utah March 16-20.

Kevin Patterson organized the trip, which included a fabulous house, a day on the slopes at Snowbird Resort and two days at Solitude Mountain Resort.

Joining Kevin were Gary Alder (West Side Branch); Ken Coffey and Brian Fitz (Northwest Side Branch); Irene Gula, Rob Manasse, Phil Schefke and his son, Cardin, and friend, Peter Lantero. Some of the participants said it was some of the best skiing they've had in their entire lives!

Their trip also included a visit to Gordon and Rella Christensen’s Clinical Research Associates headquarters, where they were shown the research facilities as well as the treatment and teaching areas.

They met with the Christensens, who were more than gracious with their time and information. The last day of their trip featured a guided tour of the Mormon facilities and historical sites in downtown Salt Lake City.

Bill Pakosz and his wife, Dolores, shared three weeks with their two granddaughters, Anne and Page Rae O’Lear, in August in the Eastern Alps of Switzerland.

They spent time in the Canton of Graubunden, specifically the Engadin Mountain Range. The Swiss Canton is known for its Alpine trails and outdoor activities. Bill says it was cool, comfortable and free of mosquitoes in August.

Rich Mantoan completed the expansion of his four-chair office to nine operators (eight are functional). His office is Polish heritage or others who would like to join to please contact him for information concerning the meetings.

Loren Feldner is organizing the annual South Suburban Branch fishing trip out of St. Joseph, MI, taking place June 1 this year. Find more information at http://web.me.com/lorenfeldner/fishing.

West Side
by Michelle Jennings, DDS, and Michael Santucci, DDS

If your actions inspire others to dream more, learn more, do more and become more, you are a leader.

— John Quincy Adams

After a pleasantly mild winter, spring is here and so is another West Side Branch update! Many changes, accomplishments and charitable efforts have taken place over the past months.

One change is the slate of officers for 2012-13: Frank Orland, president; Fred Orendach, vice president and program chair; Shafa Amirsoltani, secretary; Mike Tauber, treasurer; and Henry Fung, librarian.

Jim Bryniarski is now our branch director and George Zehak is the CDS treasurer. Gary Alder represents us at the state level as trustee to the Illinois State Dental Society.

Thanks to our West Side leaders for all their efforts and to outgoing branch president, John Perna. Please join us at our organizational meeting and get involved!

A tragic event for Lynne and Don Tuck brought out the heart of our West Side members. Don's office building suffered a fire March 11.

All the files and equipment were saved and are being restored. Thankfully, no one was in the building at the time, so no one was injured. Don thanks everyone for their calls, emails and offers of support and office space.

A special thanks to Don Bennett, our March branch meeting speaker. Don gave an outstanding program on OSHA for our dentists and their staff.

We welcome new member George Barsa. George is a dentist from Syria who is just graduating from the international dentist program at the University of Illinois at Chicago College of Dentistry in May. George’s interests include history and archeology. He is also considering pursuing a Master’s degree in theology in the future.

We also welcome Sabah Khalifa, who is currently practicing at West Town Dental in Chicago.

Courtney Villari has some exciting news. She is opening a new office at 7700 Madison St., River Forest.

As always, the West Side had terrific participation at the Midwinter Meeting and the President’s Dinner Dance. We can truly be proud of the involvement of our branch members.

Rich Caraba is back home in Las Vegas in the 70-degree weather after visiting for the Midwinter Meeting. Although he was no longer serving on the General Arrangements Committee, the Midwinter Meeting gave him time to talk to many of his friends: West Siders, past directors and officers, CDS staff and others who he was not able to visit with while on the committee.

It was also nice not having to get on the staff bus at 7 a.m. every morning! You have to give credit to the staff and volunteers who have to do it three days in a row.

Rich’s only problem was that he was getting laryngitis from talking too much. Part of that problem was that before leaving for the meeting, he had just finished making 300 calls for the Nevada Dental Society’s Retention Committee. Rich made calls to dentists who had not paid their 2012 dues; Round 2 for those who had not yet paid is on the horizon.

Rich also volunteers Wednesday afternoons for Heaven Can Wait, a no-kill animal shelter helping with post-surgical aseptic procedures. Also, periodically there are community problems, like all neighborhoods, so Rich helps out as block captain when needed. When he has time for himself, he enjoys doing yard work (helps keep his weight down) and plays piano.

Life is not dull when you are retired!

Rick Battistoni and Bill Beam attended the annual SureSmile Conference in Dallas in March. While there, they learned that the newest update of this digital orthodontic software allows a robot to bend wires in very precise movements for less time than traditional orthodontics. Rick and Bill have combined the technology with their 3D iCAT imaging ability and are excited about the opportunities that this technology is providing for their patients.

On a personal level, many memorable experiences make up the flavor of our West Side members.

Jim Bryniarski and his wife, Leona, joined Rick Bona and his wife, Mary Pat, and Charlie Luptak for a memorable performance of Rinaldo at the Lyric Opera in March.

Zach Soiya, his wife Sue, and son, Zachary, traveled to South Lake Tahoe, CA, to celebrate grandson Kaden John Nissen’s first birthday. Kaden’s proud parents are Ken and Dawn. It was a truly memorable trip.

In addition to George Zehak’s busy schedule as CDS treasurer, he traveled with his wife, Maria, and sister, Linda Norman, to Italy Jan. 20 to take his mother-in-law, Lina, back to her home in St. Caterina, Sicily, Italy — during one of our few snowstorms of the season. They got about 6 inches of snow and the majority of it fell while they were supposed to be leaving.

Due to the storm’s intensity, the flight left about two hours late (most of the domestic flights were cancelled that day from O’Hare). They missed their connecting flight in Paris and were held over six hours to catch the next flight to Rome and then on to Sicily.

Arriving late the next day, George had to find his way in the dark out of the Catania airport to drive to his mother-in-law’s hometown. Needless to say, it was a little challenging.

Timothy Walsh of Berwyn and Westmont was recently elected to the American Academy of Periodontology (AAP) Board of Trustees. The AAP has more than 8,000 members. Timothy represents District 4, which encompasses 11 Midwestern states and two Canadian provinces.

Timothy has been practicing periodontics in Berwyn since 1981, when he opened his practice. He attended St. Mary’s College in Winona, MN, and graduated with honors in 1975. He received his dental degree at Loyola University School of Dentistry in 1979 and completed a two-year advanced specialty program in periodontics in 1981 at the University of Illinois at Chicago College of Dentistry.

Timothy was elected president of the Illinois Society of Periodontists in 1992 and elected president of the Midwest Society of Periodontists in 2004. He was also named a fellow of the International College of Oral Implantology in 1995. He limits his practice to periodontics and dental implants.

Larry Gentile had a great experience this fall. He returned to John Carroll University to play in the annual Alumni Soccer Game. The game was played in the new Don Schula Stadium. While he still plays soccer, he had not played at JCU in more than 40 years. Having his two sons with him made this weekend even more enjoyable.

Surviving the game in one piece against all the younger players: priceless!

West Suburban Branch President Brian Del Carlo spent time in sunny San Diego working on his property. He enjoyed plenty of quality time watching the waves roll in.

SPACE SHARING

SPACE SHARING: The economy has affected most all dentists in a negative economic manner. Before the onset of the pending depression/crash, we would like to have another general dentist with a patient following join, as an independent contractor, our established group practice to share space within our modern and well-equipped office, located in Chicago’s Loop, to fill vacant chair-time available due to the sluggish economy. We are looking for a long-term relationship and can arrange to have you bring in your present staff if desired. 60 percent/40 percent split of collections and 50 percent/50 percent of laboratory fees. Presently our office accepts traditional insurance (remember the good old days?) and judiciously some PPOs. Some new patients from our managed care pool can be referred to the new associate. Please reply to Alice at dentaloffice downtownchicago@gmail.com

You work hard. You deserve an excellent job.

Do you take photos of your work? Do you take a lot of CE and like to push yourself to learn new procedures? Are you working in an unorganized, chaotic office that doesn’t value your skills? If so, we want to hear from you. We have very little dentist turnover and we keep adding dentists because we’re growing, not because dentists are leaving. We are looking for energetic, enthusiastic dentists who want to join our team of dedicated professionals to practice in an organized, ethical environment where the patient always comes first. We have full-time and part-time associate-ships available and we’re open seven days a week so you can add days here if you’re not getting the hours you need somewhere else. Opportunities available in Schaumburg and Chicago. Email us today with a few paragraphs about your current situation and what you’re looking for and you will get a reply within 24 hours. Check us out online and be sure to ‘like’ us on Facebook.

CDS REVIEW
There are more than a handful of companies owning and managing dental practice corporations across most states. Are they legal? Most dental practice acts prohibit non-dentists from owning a dental practice, but that begs the question. One such entity boasts of having more than 300 offices. Their benefits package geared to debt-laden new dentists (aren’t they all?) offers free health insurance, continuing education, paid vacations and eventual ownership potential. But the most seductive advantage is an instant and steadily reliable paycheck. That is music to a new dentist’s ears and there appears to be no need to join organized dentistry.

Twenty years ago studies showed there were no economies of scale in large dental practices: not true today. They can deliver dentistry efficiently as they are constituted, but continuity of practice will always be a problem for the patients in the practice. Corporate dentistry will have a ready cache of dentists who owe the company store, but my guess is a large percentage of these indentured servants by choice will leave for private practice as they retire their debt. Still, some will stay.

As corporate practices grow in size, and I believe they will, might they not advocate for mid-level providers? Our ADA Board will have to be innovative, proactive and, yes, courageous in their deliberations to remain relevant in the 21st century. Unlike our national politicians, they don’t have the luxury of applying the wrong remedy to this looming crisis. As leaders they should not bow to uninformed and reactionary constituents who preach the status quo.

After all, that’s why we hired them.

The fox circling the hen house isn’t a mid-level provider

For the past six years, an overwrought American Dental Association (ADA) Board of Trustees has been fixated on preventing the development of mid-level providers who would be permitted to do irreversible dental procedures. Meanwhile, back on the farm, the fox is circling the hen house.

In my opinion, whether the dental therapist concept will take hold is not the issue that threatens the ADA. It’s the 32 percent of dentists (up from 29 percent only a few years ago) who choose not to belong to the organization.

Certainly the poor economy is one reason for membership decline, but there are other factors in play, none more important than the following question:

Is the ADA relevant for the average dentist?

More than 13,000 dentists who haven’t been members since 1999 seem to think it’s not. For women dentists, 17,000 have not been members of the ADA since 2005; their membership has actually decreased by 2.3 percent while the number of women dentists is increasing exponentially.

ADA: we have a problem.

The advantages of membership (i.e. continuing education, insurance programs and investment programs, among others) can — for the most part — be easily obtained elsewhere, albeit at a higher cost. Our superb governmental advocacy is free and of clear benefit to members and non-members alike.

To the ADA’s credit, it has recognized the problem of non-renewals and is addressing it with the “Marketing Collaborative” recruitment campaign, targeting long-time non-members, women and 2012 graduates. One question that needs to be answered by these dentists is how can the ADA be more relevant in their professional life?

Well and good, but lurking in the shadows is the specter of “corporate dentistry.”
